THE POWER AGREEMENT WITH THE SEYMOUR ELECTRIC CO.

On Monday evening last the town council met the representatives of the Seymour Power Co., Messrs. Mulholland and Colville, to take up the matter of the proposed sale of the town's Electric Light Plant to the Seymour Co., and the agreement as to the rates to be charged for light by the Seymour Co. The agreement which is a long one will be published next week in full. The council secured the company's consent to the changes the council proposed in the agreement and the ratepayers will vote on the matter in about a month's time. The exact date will probably be fixed by the council on Monday evening next.

Following are the main points of the agreement:

The company are to pay the town $40,000.51 for the plant within thirty days of the passing of a by-law confirming the sale.

The town is to have the privilege of repurchasing the plant at the end of any ten years during the life of the agreement.

The company to make extensions of the pole line 220 feet for any customer or up to 400 feet on the order of the town council.

Should any additional poles be required on Dundas street between Adelphi and West Streets, such poles must be of iron or cement, all poles must be placed, erected, painted and kept in a condition satisfactory to the council.

The company must inspect the lines at least twice each week, so that any defects or repairs may be promptly made.

The company shall use all safety appliances adopted by the best electrical practices, and any improvement shall be made known to the council and adopted by the company if required by the council.

Should the company fail to give satisfactory service for three months the corporation may cancel the agreement and collect damages from the company.

The company agrees to furnish 1000 horse power for use in the town should the council wish to supply same to any power users at $25 per h. p. for 24 hours service or $12 per h. p. per annum of connected load plus a meter rate of 1 cent per h. p. hour.

Current is to be supplied 24 hours each day.

The rates agreed to are all the same as published by us last week.

The company will give a bond for $5000 for the due performance of the agreement.

The company agrees to maintain the present power house in condition for immediate use at any time.

Condition of St. Lawrence Peculiar Says Engineer Who Made Inspection

Brockville, June 11.—(Special)—It will be remembered that several weeks ago, on the occasion of a visit to Brockville, Hon. Adam Beck publicly announced that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission had contracted with the Ontario & New York Development Company, for its supply of cheap power for Eastern Ontario, which it is proposed to develop at Waddington, N. Y., the promoter of the concern being J. Wesley Allison of Morrisburg. During the past week a party of Canadian expert consulting engineers paid a visit of inspection to various proposed development sites along the River St. Lawrence. It is understood that they had been asked to make a report on power possibilities to H. S. Holt, the president of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Company, and other Canadian capitalists, who are interested in power projects, and who have been approached with a view to placing money in a proposed development at Waddington, proposed by Mr. Allison. This site was minutely examined. One of the party stated that on account of the low head and the results that had been obtained from similar developments they had decided to report against it and that it was unlikely that any money would be forthcoming from the men they represented.

"Conditions of the St. Lawrence are peculiar," said Roger Mason, one of them, and it is most difficult to form an adequate idea in the summer time of what the actual conditions may be in winter. One has to take into account the ice, the frazil, the effect on the neighboring lands or buildings, when the works are constructed and numberless other details often overlooked by those who merely see undeveloped power in all running water. Besides this we learn at Waddington the promoters do not own and cannot purchase all the property necessary to develop power at that point, which would make it most successful from an engineering point of view. We therefore shall not be able to report favorably upon the proposition.

BLUE RUIN SINGERS RECEIVE A REBUKE

Bishop Mills' Sharp Criticism in Charge to Ontario Synod.

In his charge to the Ontario Synod at Kingston, Tuesday afternoon, Bishop Mills deplored the fact that the Church of England had taken too much for granted and were satisfied with conditions that were unsatisfactory. Instead of occupying the first, it occupies the third place numerically in Canada. His Lordship stated that the late Archbishop Lewis had confirmed 28,000 persons during his tenure of office. He himself had confirmed over 8,000. Where are they? his Lordship asked. Statistics of the Diocese did not show this increase in membership. Bishop Mills told the clergy that they should not merely be satisfied with ministering to those who came to them, but should go out and search for the sheep that have gone astray.

Speaking about trade relations, the Bishop said that there were some going about singing a song concerning blue ruin which is coming to our country through reciprocity with the United States. "Whether reciprocity would be in the general interests of the country," he said, is a question for debate, and about which different opinions may be held. But politicians have not devoted their attention so much to the discussion of this question as in rigging changes on the cry that if reciprocity were adopted it would be the first step towards annexation, that the United States would be buying us, and we would be selling ourselves. I think that is the greatest nonsense that ever came from the mouths of supposedly sane men; as a Canadian I repeat it. I would think very little of my loyalty to the British Crown if it depended on tariff schedules. Those who think the national spirit of Canada is such a poor and uncertain thing that her existence as a nation would be imperilled by an increase of trade with the United States certainly do not know her. There is no part of the British Empire in which there is truer loyalty than in Canada, and she can be neither bought or sold. The opposition to reciprocity is simply a political one. That there are men of both parties opposed to it simply means that men can be caught by a cry and can be led by sentiment. The thought of annexation makes many incapable of calmly judging the matter. Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition, like a sensible man, has I believe, while opposing reciprocity on economic grounds, refused to take up the annexation cry, or to use it in any way as an argument."

D., 1911, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the late residence of the said deceased known as "Fountain Hall," Napanee, a large quantity of household goods and effects, consisting of carpets, curtains, blinds, bedding, table linen, dining room furniture, two handsome parlor suits, piano, large mirror, a number of ornaments, bed room furniture, two gas stoves, wood stove, coal stove, steel engravings, prints, a large quantity of dishes and a quantity of electro plate ware, also one run-about motor, one tired buggy, 1 top buggy, 1 cutter, robes, harness, and other articles too numerous to mention.

Terms of sale of Chattels—CASH.
REAL ESTATE.

The said Executor will also offer for sale at the same place, "Fountain Hall," at two o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, the following real estate:

PARCEL No. 1—A handsome solid brick, two-story, ten room residence, finished in cut stone, situated upon 1 acre of land on the north corner of Graham and Robert streets, known as "Fountain Hall," being the late residence of the deceased. This is one of the most desirable residences in Napanee and is fitted up with town water, furnace, gas, etc., with beautifully laid out grounds, garden, fruit orchard, large barn and other outhouses all in good repair.

PARCEL No. 2—That desirable hotel property, known as the Campbell House, in the progressive town of Napanee, consisting of lots numbered eleven and twelve on the north side of Dundas street, lot numbered one on the west side of Centre street, and the north east part of lot number thirteen, on the north side of Dundas street, being one of the best hotel premises in the Town of Napanee, heated throughout with steam, and up-to-date in every respect, being situated in the business centre of the town, is a solid cut stone and brick building, three-stories and part four-stories high, with sample rooms, and upon the premises and forming part thereof are five shops now under rental business, stairs and fitted up with plate glass fronts, and situated on Dundas street, also including a new fireproof cement barn, arranged for the accommodation of a large number of horses and fitted up in every respect suitable for hotel business. The hotel is well located and rented to a first-class man and doing the best commercial business in Napanee.

The purchaser of this property can also purchase the contents and business from the tenant on fair and reasonable terms, if desired. Possession of this hotel property and premises, subject to existing leases, can be given forthwith and absolute possession of the hotel can be obtained three months after sale, if required.

PARCEL No. 3—Consists of the west half of lot number 16, in the first concession of the Township of Adolphustown, in the County of Lennox and Addington, containing one hundred acres of first-class farm land, upon which there is a quantity of wood land, also an orchard of mixed fruits.

This property is situated on the north shore of the Bay of Quinte, convenient to church and school, upon one of the best roads in the county with the advantage of rural mail and telephone. MANY VARIETIES OF HUMANS

WHERE THERE ARE 2,000 SPECIES OF MANKIND.

Traveler in India With a Picturesque Vocabulary Describes Them.

Before I arrived in India I read Sir Bamfylde Fuller's book, Studies of Indian Life and Sentiment, and although I penciled many interesting and striking passages, perhaps the most important and the most essential of all passed before my eyes without making the smallest impression, says a writer in the London Chronicle. It was not until I had traveled for hundreds of miles in the trains, penetrated to jungle villages by means of bone-racking bullock carts and loitered in the heavy smelling bazaars of interior towns where the tourist never comes, that the importance of this particular passage on glancing over the book again, came home to my mind with an extraordinary force.

Sir Bamfylde Fuller is speaking of the permanent maintenance of human types in India, and he says that "the population is heterogeneous to an extent that it needs actual experience to appreciate. It is no question," he continues, "of rich and poor, of town and country, of employer and employed; the differences lie far deeper. The population of a district or a town is a collection of different nationalities—almost species—of mankind, that will not eat or drink or intermarry with one another, and that are governed in the more important affairs of life by committees of their own. It is hardly too much to say that by the caste system the inhabitants of India are differentiated into over 2,000 species of mankind, which in the physical relations of life have as little in common as the inmates of a zoological garden."

AMAZING VARIETY.

I fear, from my own case, there is truth in the words that "it needs actual experience to appreciate" this amazing variety of human types; and yet until this variety is realized in the mind there can be no intelligent understanding of anything that has to do with India. The very first thing a man must do, who would form rational opinions on Indian politics or carry in his mind a true picture of Indian color and Indian feeling is to realize that the 300,000,000 of humanity comprising the Empire of India are not one race, but are 2,000 species of mankind as different from each other as snakes from elephants, tigers from fireflies and mosquitoes from buffaloes.

The charm as well as the problems of India lie in this most extraordinary variety. A flying politician, taken in hand by a Bengali, sees infinitely less of India than a British workman sees of Germany conducted through manufacturing cities by a tariff reformer. It is a most foolish and a most dangerous thing for a man of little observation, small imagination and no reflection to race through one or two Indian cities and then express himself on Indian politics with more authority and greater confidence than a man of science would speak of chemistry after a even the smallest, you may see something of the infinite variety of Indian mankind. Men of noble stature and intellectual countenance, men to all intents negroid and bestial, men of Jewish character, men like Chinese, men black, brown, chocolate, yellow and almost white, move about among a womankind degraded to the lowest forms of labor and debased out of the likeness of humanity. The turbans and loin-cloths of the men are different; they eat different foods, worship different gods or devils, speak entirely different languages and will have no more relation one with another than exists between an English crow and a flying fish in the Red Sea. The sects of Christendom are as one loving and united church compared with the religions of India. Something like a quarrier of the population of India, let us say 70,000,000 of men and women, are regarded as outcasts, helots and abomination by the other threequarters. And these helots have their separating pride and customs. In every little village the outcasts live in a quarter of their own, and if they would worship a god, must make their own temple and employ a priest of their own order—a priest despised and loathed by the religious leaders. They are worse treated than the galled bullocks under the yoke of the transit bandy and they ill-treat each other.

From the ascetic and refined native, who will not eat animals, down to the native who eats lizards and mice, and downward still to the native who lives upon the human corpses fished from the Ganges, there is in India every height and every depth of the human mind ever comprehended in the soul of Shakespeare or the heart of Dante. In England one might classify Englishmen with perhaps 200 temperaments. In India one has to speak of

2,000 DIFFERENT SPECIES.

Reflect upon this fact until it is realized; reflect that the dense millions of India are races of men as various and disparate as the leaves of a forest, the birds of the air, and the fishes of the sea; definitely possess the mind of the idea that between these groups of crowding humanity there are greater gulfs than anything which separates an intellectual Englishman from a Scandinavian peasant and you will be at the beginning of a true conception of India's mystery and at the door through which a European must first pass truly to comprehend and feel her infinite charm and the sorcery of all her multitudinous glamour.

Caste, you may be told, is breaking down in the cities. This is partly true, but only in a general sense. And if caste broke down absolutely in all the cities it would not alter the truth of Sir Bamfylde Fuller's statement. For the cities are only specks on the map of India and the people who dwell there are but a child's handful out of the 300,000,000 inhabitants. Something like 90 per cent. of the population live on the land, and among these 270,000,000 the system of caste is not merely lieutenant governor or viceroy, but king of India, the one supreme authority to which perfect allegiance and unquestioning obedience is rendered by all the peoples.

EATING IN SUMMER.

BURGLAR GANG'S SUCCESS

DETECTIVE AND THIEF AT THE SAME TIME.

Gang Received Tips From Police Officer Who Shared in Loot.

The Paris police recently received their biggest surprise in years. It has been declared that one of their leading officers, who recently retired with the rank of brigadier, was a veritable Raffles—or Arsene Lupin, the French copy of that gentleman burglar.

The accused officer's name is Gaston Warze. After his resignation, which was regretfully accepted—for he was regarded as one of the most astute detectives—a burglar who was under arrest made a confession. The man's story reads like one by Sherlock Holmes.

According to this burglar, he was one of a band who had enriched themselves with the proceeds of crimes systematically planned and carried out during many years. Their principal victims were jewelers. Their leader, the burglar declares, was Warze, the brigadier of police.

WILD STORIES ARE TOLD.

It was the brigadier of police, the man asserted, who planned the burglaries, especially of banks, and gave the tip when it was safe to commit the crime; then, after the burglary he would get himself assigned to the case to run down the criminals, and would appear to get on their track, thereby earning the praise of his superiors, and keeping other officers off the trail; but just when the arrests were to be made the burglars always disappeared.

When the police heard these charges against their former comrade great excitement prevailed in the department. A hue and cry for Warze was at once started, but he had disappeared. Nor could the police find a woman who was said to be a member of the band. It was hinted that Warze had murdered her to prevent her making a confession.

The true dime novel climax came when Warze, who had been sought everywhere, presented himself at the police headquarters, and coolly announced that he had come to demand an investigation, and to be confronted by his accuser.

Warze protested innocence, and said he could disprove the charges. He had started for the home of his parents in Belgium, he said, when he read of the accusations. He admitted that he had become entangled with a woman, and that she was his companion in Belgium when he was supposed to have murdered her. Apart from that Warze declares that he is innocent.

The police are now wondering if his story is true, or if he is only perpetrating a bluff worthy of Raffles himself.

Two other crimes have been agitating Paris.

SOLD BOGUS DECORATIONS.

That the vanity to be distinguished by a ribbon in the button-hole is not confined to foreigners was demonstrated by the arrest of Guillaume Valensi, a member of the Paris bar and nephew of Gen. Valensi, an honored soldier stationed at Tunis. Valensi is accus-

FAD BREADS.

For at Least 30 Years They Have Come in Quick Succession.

"Early in the '80s there was much talk about a process of bread making from underground wheat," says the Operative Miller. "It was introduced by one Avedy of Moscow, and the same fad has been re-introduced in Paris within the last month or two.

"Then came Jaeger's whole wheat bread (no longer heard of) and Brackebush's potato flour bread and graham bread. In 1891 Dr. Heim, a geologist, was to the fore with a special bread for the diabetic, which he called Aleuronat bread. This seems to have fallen into 'innocuous desuetude.'

"The next specialty was earth nut bread. At about the same time as the Aleuronat bread the Russian National Health Association proposed that bread for the poorer classes should be made with an admixture of a very nourishing constituent of ox blood which hitherto had gone to waste at the slaughterhouses.

"Russia also offered to the world a mill for making bread direct from the crushed grain. The Government tried this out in its prisons and orphan asylums. A truly Russian idea this.

"Also in 1891—this year was specially prolific—came Steinmetz bread, which was as noisily heralded as London's standard of fo-day. In this year also came Swedish 'palatable' hard bread.

"In 1894 or '95, a food chemist of Hamburg, name Utescher, patented a process for mixing skimmed milk with yeast and leaven, after which the mixture stood for twenty-four or thirty-six hours before going to the dough machine.

"In 1898 a Swiss named Witschi introduced a 'full' bread, and after this, in the same year, came rye 'full' bread, pasteurized bread, leguminous bread and Schweitzer bread.

"The year 1891 contributed 'Dau'erbot,' a special health bread. It lasted two or three years; analysis finally proved its undoing and brought dismay to many bakers.

"In 1905 Simon's bread was introduced as the one satisfactory solution of the bread question. Next came the 'N' bread, named after its inventor, Nieriker, a dentist, who claimed great hygienic properties for it in keeping the teeth free from impurities. Another inventor wanted to solve the bread problem with a loaf made from cottonseed flour. The latest to be announced, prior to the English 'standard' which now holds the centre of the stage, were Feronia, an iron health bread, and Roggina."

IN SUNNY ALBERTA.

Strangely Mild Climate of a Far Northern Province of Canada.

"Where is Alberta, and what is it like?" writes Albert Jay Nock in the American Magazine. "When one reaches Edmonton, the capital, 300 miles north of the international boundary, one has scarcely made a start into the province. Yet Edmonton is further north from New York than New York is from Tampa, Florida.

"It lies at latitude 53 degrees 30 minutes far above Newfoundland, above the island of Anticosti, more than twice as far north of Mont-information for a man of little observation, small imagination and no reflection to race through one or two Indian cities and then express himself on Indian politics with more authority and greater confidence than a man of science would speak of chemistry after a life of incessant investigation.

You cannot dogmatize upon India. You can no more speak of India as one complete and single thing than you can exhaute botany by smelling a rose or paying sixpence for a bunch of lillies.

INDIA IS INFINITE.

A man with seeing eyes begins to perceive this baffling truth on his very first walk through a street, and he is at once on his guard in forming opinions, and most difficult in venturing to utter even the least uncertain of them. He who speaks of India as a nation of Hindoos and Mohammedans would speak of the constellations as consisting of Orion and Ursa Major.

There are a good many people in England who think of Indians as two peoples, Hindoos and Mohammedans, purposely kept apart, and purposely held down by an immense army of proud, iniquitous and atrabilious civil servants exported year by year by the India office. Let these good people bear in mind that the inhabitants of India represent 2,000 species of mankind, that not only is each species opposed socially and intellectually to the rest, but that they practice toward each other on ostracism which has never existed in England between the greatest Swellfoot and the most downtrodden hind; and, further, let him definitely apprehend and reflect upon this fact, that the whole company of British civil servants, including military officers holding civil appointments, is only 1,200. India is governed by Indians, a tremendous army of them, with just 1,200 British citizens at their head. One might more truly say that India employs a handful of Englishmen to direct her own government than assert that England holds India in the GRIP OF AN IRON HAND.

"I have seen nothing of violence or even rudeness on the part of Englishmen toward the natives; but I have no doubt that instances of this kind could be cited and perhaps proved. I have seen, known, and I see it every day I live in India, and every mile I travel in the country, instances of the most intolerable exclusiveness and appalling pride between native and native. Consider these two facts: a Brahmin priest will not visit a low caste person however great the poor man's sorrow or however extreme his need; and a high-caste doctor will not go to the bedside of a dying coolie. "Thanks be to God," said to me a benevolent and educated Hindu, "for the hospitals set up for poor people by the British Government." A postman will not deliver letters into the hand of a lower caste man than himself; he flings them down on the ground. Democracy has no expression whatever in India except through the government, which devotes all its labors to improving the material fortunes of the poor. It is the abused civil servant who has given India an idea at all of democracy, and it is the civil servant who governs for the many and the poor and the general welfare.

not merely lieutenant governor or viceroy, but king of India, the one supreme authority to which perfect allegiance and unquestioning obedience is rendered by all the peoples.

EATING IN SUMMER.

Amount Should Not Be Reduced Unless Work is Lessened.

Diet in hot weather is a subject on which there are dangerous popular and professional delusions. Without the slightest evidence the alleged experts are advising people to cut down the diet, irrespective of the amount of work done.

"The hard worker must take in as much fuel in summer as winter or live on his own tissues. The only man who can afford to cut his diet is he who cuts his work with the hot weather—and that only means those who can afford leisure, not the vast majority, whose busy season is in the summer. The building trades and many other outdoor employments shut down in the winter and the laborer needs less food like an idle ship at her dock, yet our experts tell these idlers to eat more simply because it is winter.

What we do know is that to resist infections man must be well nourished. Summer or winter, idle or busy, and the average healthy man can extract nourishment from almost all articles used as foods, if he won't gulp them in a hurry like a dog or chew them like a cow.—American Medicine.

POINTED PRARGRAPHS.

It's easy to economize if you haven't the money.

Beware of the straight tip. It may lead to a crooked deal.

But the safest get-rich-quick scheme of all is to inherit it.

A woman isn't necessarily a good cook because she is a good roaster.

You do some things well and some otherwise—but what's your average?

And some people can't see the good of being good unless other people find it out.

When a girl knows that a man loves her she always likes to pretend to doubt it.

When a woman tells a man she enjoys a man hearing him talk, it means that he is an excellent listener.

A man never gets too old to remember some of the things that never occurred when he was a boy.

FORETOLD IN A DREAM.

A fatal accident that was foretold in a dream was described at an inquest at Old Hill, near Birmingham, England, on the body of a miner named Benjamin Westwood, who was killed at the Fly Colliery. His brother William said that on the night preceding the accident he had a dream, and in it he saw his brother killed. He added: "I did not go to work on the next morning, for my dream made me so ill that I was unable to leave my bed, and have been unable to do any work since. In my dream I saw a considerable quantity of coal fall from the roof on to my brother, knock him down and kill him, and from what those who witnessed the accident have told me, my dream was fulfilled. I did not go to my brother's house to warn him, as I was too ill to leave home."

That the vanity to be distinguished by a ribbon in the button-hole is not confined to foreigners was demonstrated by the arrest of Guillaume Valensi, a member of the Paris bar and nephew of Gen. Valensi, an honored soldier stationed at Tunis. Valensi is accused of having sold to Frenchmen generally, but particularly in provincial cities—and for the most part honest, hardworking tradesmen—decorations in orders which existed only in his fertile imagination.

These orders had high-sounding names and glittering insignia. One of them, which, it is alleged, Valensi conferred widely, and always for a money consideration was "The Red Crescent of Morocco."

Stories worthy of the "Arabian Nights" are being told of Valensi's visits to French cities. He is said to have gone to Lille to form a branch office of the order. The ceremonies were most imposing. Valensi was dressed in Arab garb, and his secretary was supposed to have the title of Said. Valensi was received with royal honors. Fetes were arranged, houses were decorated, and thousands thronged the streets when he passed in his carriage.

Valensi's arrest was due to information given by a man, who asserts that the lawyer offered to sell him the decoration of the Palmes Academique, a French Government order. It is charged that when arrested Valensi had in his possession a forged diploma of that order.

The affair has caused a profound sensation because of the prominence of Valensi's family connections.

IMITATED AMERICANS.

Five hundred and twenty-five per cent. The United States furnished examples of getting rich quick which were faithfully followed by Lucien Rivier, a banker, who fled from Paris after a warrant for his arrest has been issued. He leaves many trusting victims who have implicit faith still in his promise to pay them one per cent. a day on all money they invested with him.

His methods were such an exact copy of several Americans' that it is believed that he made a study of their procedure. His advertisements were inserted in provincial papers and in Switzerland and Belgium. By that reason he was able to work several months before the attention of the police was attracted. He was receiving $15,000 a day when he fled. He was paying back to his dupes about $10,000 a day and pocketing the difference.

MAN ASHORE!

a start into the province. Yet Edmonton is further north from New York than New York is from Tampa, Florida.

"It lies at latitude 53 degrees 30 minutes far above Newfoundland, above the island or Anticosti, more than twice as far north of Montreal or Halifax, N. S., as Halifax is north of New York. It lies level with the foot of Hudson's Bay and nearly to the middle of Labrador.

"But one is wrong in supposing that it must be very cold up there. I spent a midwinter week in Edmonton and wore the same weight of clothes that I had been wearing in the springlike climate of the Coast—lighter clothes than one would dare wear in New York at this season.

"I drove in an automobile all the afternoon of the 11th of February with but a light overcoat. There was perhaps an inch of snow, and the wind was light and warm. The railways do not keep any snow-ploughs at Edmonton and the houses are not even fitted with double windows.

"Marvellous influence of the Pacific winds and currents. Two hundred miles north and west in the Peace River country and in a broad strip lying across Alberta north of the Lesser Slave the climate is milder than at Edmonton. The mountains are lower and admit the ocean air unchilled.

"The isothermal lines published in the Government maps are an interesting study. Edmonton and the whole region northwest to Fort Simpson average 250 days in the year when the thermometer is above the freezing point.

"Summer nights in Edmonton give only about two hours and a half of actual darkness. One can easily read fine print by daylight at half past ten. Ball games begin at half past seven. The longest day gives eighteen hours of sunshine, and I never saw such brilliant, living sunshine anywhere else. Canadians call this province 'Sunny Alberta,' and they are right. Summer or winter, a cloud in the sky is rare enough to attract attention."

SUGAR FOR WEAK HEARTS.

English Doctor Advises Its Use For Various Disorders.

The British Medical Journal recently began a series of articles by Sir James Sawyer, advocating the use of sugar as a heart tonic. He prescribes it also in wasting disorders, some forms of anaemia, adynamic rheumatism and nervous diseases. He finds patients increase in weight, power, strength, and vigor, and in those of neuroathenic tendencies he finds that the results are especially good.

The patient is advised to carry with him about half a pound of lump sugar and to eat it from time to time, except just before a meal. In concluding his paper the English physician declares that henceforth we must think of members of the sugar group as sustainers and developers of the heart muscles and of benefit in a large variety of cardio-vascular troubles.

Pure cane sugar should be used. The purity of the product is assured if two lumps become luminous when rubbed together in the dark. If the lumps do not shine, the manufacturer of the same may be denounced as a luminosity.

KING OF ENGLAND'S MAILS

ALL ABOUT THE CORRESPONDENCE OF HIS MAJESTY.

Great Care Is Taken to Prevent Errors in the Handling of the Mail Matter.

One of the least heard of, yet one of the most important, departments in the Royal Household is the private postal establishment attached to the Court, where the delivery of the King's mail matter is attended to, says London Answers.

The Court post-office is under the control of Mr. Hiley, who is a passed first-class telegraph clerk. The headquarters of the Court post-office are at Buckingham Palace, but a temporary office is established wherever his Majesty may be staying, under the direction of Mr. Hiley, who always travels with the Court.

THE PALACE POSTMEN.

The letters for the Sovereign and the Royal Household are delivered in sealed bags to the Buckingham Palace post-office six times a day, and at other Royal residences three times. The first delivery is made at 7 a.m. Directly the mail is delivered the bags are opened and the contents sorted by the postal staff, consisting of four male and two female clerks, and they are then given to the Palace postmen for delivery.

The letters for their Majesties and members of the Royal family are delivered to the equerries' morning room, and placed in the rooms of their Majesties' secretaries by an equerry. The letters for members of the Royal Household are delivered to their respective apartments, and the "servants' mail" to the Palace steward's room and the head housekeeper's room for the male and female staff respectively. The letters are delivered in this way four times a day; but when the Court is out of London there are usually only two deliveries of letters arranged for by the Court post-office.

A feature of the Court post-office management is the care that is taken to prevent the slightest error occurring in the handling of mail matter. The contents of each mail bag opened in the post-office are counted three times, and the number of letters it contains entered in a book labelled "Mails in." When the letters are made up for delivery to the different departments in the Household the total number of out-going letters is then entered in a "delivery" book, and the number, of course, entered in each book must be the same.

"OFFICIAL PAID."

The out-going mails are posted in the Palace pillar boxes provided for each of the chief departments in the Household. These boxes are cleared six times a day by a Palace postman, and the whole mail is then dealt with at the King's post-office, when it is made up in sealed bags, and despatched by the General Post Office. Letters on State business and all his Majesty's personal correspondence are marked "Official paid," and need not be stamped; but all members of the Household writing on their private affairs must stamp their letters in the ordinary way.

INVESTITURE AT CARNARVON.

King George Will Personally Conduct the Ceremony.

Regardless of Superstition, the investiture of the Prince of Wales is to take place on July 13. The scene is to be Carnarvon Castle, and great efforts are on foot to make the occasion popular.

King George himself will conduct the ceremony. He will be assisted by the Anglican Bishop of Bangor and by a representative Nonconformist Welsh clergyman. So far as possible the observances will follow the precedent set by Henry IV. in 1400 in the investiture of his son, afterward Henry V.

The ceremony will follow immediately upon the return of the Royal family from their Irish visit. Landing from the Royal yacht at Holyhead they will go by special train to Griffith's Crossing, whence they will drive with a military escort to Carnarvon. There in the Castle Square the Mayor and Corporation officers will present addresses of welcome.

As the party enters the castle by the ancient Water Gate, the Royal Welsh choir of 400 voices, under the baton of Organist John Williams, of Christ Church, Carnarvon, will sing the Welsh anthems. Then the leading actors will robe for the ceremony, which is to take place at 2.30 p.m.

A raised platform in the centre of the great inner court of the castle will be the actual place of investiture. Platforms to seat from 12,000 to 15,000 persons are being erected all round it. The Prince of Wales with an elaborate suite will proceed from his apartments to the Royal platform. A second procession will then escort the King and Queen to the stand. The King will present to the Prince the insignia of his rank, which are being bought by subscription as a gift from the people of Wales. The ecclesiastics will offer prayer and confer benedictions on the Prince, and the choir will sing more anthems.

After the ceremony the Prince and his attendants will proceed to the historic gateway of Queen Eleanor, which commands a view of Castle Square and the State Quay, to show himself to the people, who will be allowed to gather there to greet him. The Prince, it is announced, will address the people in their native language. He is working hard with a tutor every day to bring his acquaintance with the language up to the necessary degree of efficiency.

Pat in Grave With Man She Had Killed to Save Honor.

On the Russian gold working near Argun, in eastern Siberia, numbers of Korean workmen are employed and whole colonies of Koreans have been established in the vicinity.

A grim story illustrating the ideas of popular justice which obtain among these people is narrated by the Novoye Vremya. It appears that a certain Tschusain, returning to the district after a somewhat prolonged absence, sought to renew a love affair which he had previously had with a Korean woman named Lo. The woman had in the meantime married and resisted her former lover's advances. He persisted, and in defence of her honor she killed him.

'LEAKS' IN THE FOOD SUPPLY

HINTS AS TO THE MOST ECONOMIC TO BUY.

The Cost of Foods and the Actual Nutriments Supplied Are in Inverse Proportion.

From one-fourth to one-half the average family's income is spent for food. The increase in price of almost all foods in the last few years has resulted either in an increase in the amount spent for food or a decrease in the amount of food purchased. Why not try to apply the rules for "increased efficiency" and "conservation" to this question of food supply in order to obtain a larger return for the money expended?

The "leaks" in the food supply are in careless and unseasonable buying; in wasteful and poor cooking; in thoughtless use of fuel and in ignorance of the real value of food.

Few housekeepers understand the relation between the cost of a food and its nutritive value to the body. Most housekeepers say, "It ought to be good; it costs enough," and they feel that they fully perform their duty to their family if they spend a generous sum of money, furnish an abundant amount, and satisfy all appetites.

As a rule, the cost of foods and the actual nutriment supplied by them are in inverse proportion. The more a food costs in money, the less is usually its real value, since in the majority of cases two-thirds to nine-tenths of the expensive foods are merely

WATER AND REFUSE.

Something more than satisfying the appetite and pleasing the eye should be considered. A little sugar or a sweet dish, for example, may satisfy the appetite, but it does not satisfy the daily demand of the body for energy and tissue-making material.

Until the housekeeper knows something of real food values she does not know whether her family is being properly fed or how to do it most economically.

Ten cents spent for a quart of milk actually supplies almost three times as much food as the same sum expended in eggs at thirty-six cents a dozen, and supplies it in better form. Ten cents for bread furnishes three and one-half times as much as the quart of milk. Compared with meat, at present prices, milk again is found a more economical and less wasteful food; meat and eggs furnish protein and fat only, whereas milk also supplies sugar, and gives all three of the food elements needed by the body.

Milk at eight cents a quart will supply six hundred and fifty calories of energy to the body, while the eight cents spent for one of the cheaper cuts of meat—the chuck ribs at twelve to fourteen cents a pound—will furnish only about five hundred and fifty calories. The same money invested in a porterhouse steak at twenty-five cents a pound will bring the small return of three hundred and fifty calories, and that is counting in the fat, which many discard entirely.

business and all his Majesty's personal correspondence are marked "Official paid," and need not be stamped; but all members of the Household writing on their private affairs must stamp their letters in the ordinary way.

In addition to the ordinary postal business, a large number of special despatches are handled by the King's postmaster and his staff. There are four messengers on duty throughout the day at the King's post-office when the Court is in London, two of whom must be ready at a moment's notice to start for any part of the United Kingdom. The other two deliver despatches in London only, chiefly to the Government offices.

URGENT DESPATCHES

for delivery abroad are sent to the Foreign Office, whence they are sent to their destination by a King's messenger.

An enormous telegraphic business is under the control and supervision of the King's postmaster. Three operators are on duty in the telegraphic department at Buckingham Palace when the King is in London, and two usually travel with the Court.

There is, of course, a telegraph office attached to all the Royal residences, and if the King stays at any private house, it is always connected by wire with the nearest telegraph office. It is part of Mr. Hiley's duty to see that this is properly done, and to arrange a temporary telegraph office wherever the King may stay, in which an operator is on duty both day and night.

When a foreign sovereign visits the King he is afforded the full use of the Court postal and telegraph service, both for himself and suite, and a couple of extra assistants are put on duty to deal with the handling of the Royal visitors' mail matter and telegraphic despatches.

THREE TIMES FOR SAFETY.

A telegraph clerk in the King's private service must be a highly-skilled operator. The great bulk of the traffic passing through the King's post office is in code, which must be transcribed with the greatest accuracy, for the slightest error in the transcription of a word, even a letter, might completely alter the meaning of a despatch. A specially important despatch is usually repeated at least twice, and some are repeated three times to ensure accuracy.

The Kaiser takes great interest in the work and organization of the Court postal and telegraph service, and always spends some of his time when in this country, in going into the details of any new departures that may have been made in its arrangement.

OIL YOUR SKIN.

The latest medical theory for keeping fit, says the London Daily Mirror, is to oil your skin all over once a week, and rub it in. A well-known doctor, on being interviewed, pointed out how, when we bathe, we wash away all the natural oil off the skin, thus leaving the skin hard, brittle, and liable to eczema, rashes, and similar diseases. "The oil as the Roman gladiators knew," said the doctor, "made the muscles supple, and the man with the muscles supple has far more chance of being fit."

sought to renew a love affair which he had previously had with a Korean woman named Lo. The woman had in the meantime married and resisted her former lover's advances. He persisted, and in defence of her honor she killed him.

Thereupon a court was convened from among the Korean community and the six eldest men present passed sentence that the woman should be buried alive. She was dragged away to the grave of Tschusain, which was opened, and after having been stunned with a blow on the forehead from a billet of wood, she was thrown in with the decomposed corpse of her would-be betrayer and buried in the presence of the entire local Korean populace.

On the news becoming known to the Russian authorities the grave was again opened and the story verified, with the result that the members of the court will now have to stand trial for murder.

WORLD'S LONGEST BRIDGE.

That at Quebec Will Contain 130,000,000 Pounds of Steel.

The new bridge across the St. Lawrence near Quebec, which supplants the mighty structure that fell when half finished in the summer of 1907, is to be on the same site, but the north pier is moved out 50 feet farther into the river, thus apparently shortening the central span. The new bridge will contain 130,000,000 pounds of steel, as compared with the 70,000,000 of its predecessor. It will cost when completed not less than $12,000,000, and will have the longest truss span of any bridge in the world—1,800 feet, or 90 feet more than that of the great Firth of Forth bridge in Scotland.

The construction of this bridge is an impressive indication of the progress of mechanical and civil engineering since the Brooklyn Bridge was opened to traffic, May 24, 1883. The latter required 13 1-2 years to erect, and to date has cost over $22,000,000, or $10,000,000 more than the prospective cost of the new Canadian giant.

NEW CANCER THEORY.

Districts Where Sulphur Dioxide Abounds Has Most Cases.

That cancer is due to a parasitic fungus that stimulates the animal cells so that they become parasitic themselves, is the view advanced in a new work by C. E. Green, a British medical student. The theory is based on the resemblance of animal cancers in plant tumors, and supposes that the undiscovered organism of animal cancers must be very similar to Plasmodiophora brassicae, the cause of plant cancer.

Sulphurous substances specially favor the growth of the plant parasite, while calcium and copper tend to destroy it. As this would suggest, human cancer is most common in chimney sweeps, brewers and furriers, who are most exposed to sulphur vapors, and is rarest in tanners, copper workers and paper makers, whose occupations bring contact with copper or lime.

The houses and districts that have most cancer, moreover, are those where sulphur dioxide is present in the air—that is, where coal is burned and chimney draft and ventilation are imperfect.

JOIN BAND AND LIVE LONG.

Investigation Shows That Players Die Young is Wrong.

Ailments of the heart and lungs have been frequently attributed by pathologists and others to the blowing of wind instruments. It has even been asserted without any definite foundation in fact that the cornet, trombone or oboe player is "blowing his lungs away" and will die before his time.

Dr. Forcheimer in his "Prophylaxis and Treatment of Internal Diseases" shows the fallacy of this belief. He states emphatically that "just as many players of stringed instruments have emphysema as players of wind instruments," and after a long experience of musicians he has come to the conclusion that "neither emphysema nor its predisposition is a result of their occupation."

To determine statistically the effects on longevity of playing upon wind instruments Dr. James F. Rogers recently consulted Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians" and Champlin's "Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians," and calculated the average of 100 performers upon wind instruments and of a like number upon stringed instruments. The average length of life of players upon wind instruments was 63.5 years and of players upon stringed instruments 62 years. Of the former 34 per cent. reached ages above 70 years.

For the different wind instruments the averages were as follows: Flute, 61.2 years; oboe, 63 years; bassoon, 63 years; horn, 64.4 years; clarinet, 65.2 years; trumpet and cornet, 69.1 years. It is interesting that the players on wind instruments who exert the greatest intra-pneumonic pressure—namely performers on the trumpet and cornet—were the longest lived, while the players who exert the least pressure, the flutists, were the shortest.

INSURES UNDILUTED MILK.

Sanitary inspectors of Saloniki, in Turkey, have adopted a plan for insuring to the public a supply of undiluted milk. They have ordered a supply of cans fitted with valves in such a manner that a liquid may be poured out but not in. Another opening permits the cans to be filled with milk. The cans, when they are full, are taken to inspection depots, after which the second opening is closed and stamped with an official seal. All the dealers will be supplied with these cans and compelled to use them.

house steak at twenty-five cents a pound will bring the small return of three hundred and fifty calories, and that is counting in the fat, which many discard entirely.

THE PRICE OF MEAT

is determined by the demand for certain cuts, by the tenderness and the flavor of those cuts, and never by the real proportion of protein and fat that they contain. Pound for pound, the flank and the porter-house steak furnish the same amount of nutriment—but the prices of the two are far different.

Bacon at thirty cents a pound is considered too expensive by many, but that pound of bacon contains just two and one-half times the fuel value that the pound of round or loin steak does, provided all the fat is not fried out of it and thrown away.

Not until you know the real value of nuts can you decide between buying nuts in the shell or shelled. Many prefer buying them in the shell for sanitary reasons, as the shelling is often done in the city slums, under the worst possible conditions; but there may be an added reason in the greater value received for the money.

Almonds in the shell retail for twenty cents a pound on the average, and shelled almonds sell for sixty. The pound of nuts in the shell will furnish in actual nutriment more than one-half as much as the pound of shelled nuts—at one-third the cost.

With English walnuts, however, the case is not the same, which shows the unevenness and untrustworthiness of market prices in relation to food value.

ENGLISH WALNUTS

in the shell, at twenty-five cents, furnish less fuel value in proportion than the shelled nuts at fifty, or even seventy, cents a pound.

Butter at thirty-five cents a pound supplies more than twice the value of cream at twenty cents a pint.

In the substitution of eggs for meat many persons are misled, because they depend upon the satisfaction of the appetite alone as the guide to supplying the table. The juices of meat are stimulating to the appetite, whereas the flavor of the egg tends to satisfy. One egg, costing two and one-half or three cents, may satisfy the appetite, but three cents worth of steak gives nearly twice as much in nutritive value. One slice of bacon, carefully broiled, and costing about one cent, supplies one-fourth more than the egg costing two or three cents.

Bread at five cents a pound and potatoes at seventy-five cents a bushel give the same amount of energy for the money spent, but the bread is decidedly more advantageous through the quality of food furnished, for the potato supplies practically nothing but starch, whereas the bread has the valuable tissue-building protein.

One small banana is equal to one very large orange or to two small apples. Prices of fresh fruits are variable, but at average market prices the apple is cheaper than the banana, and the banana is correspondingly cheaper than the orange.—Youths' Companion.

"THE SELKIRK," Palatial New Hotel of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Winnipeg.

The above is the plan which has been approved by the Grand Trunk Pacific management for the new hotel which the company intends to erect in Winnipeg. This hotel, which in appearance and luxuriousness of appointments is to be the equal of the Chateau Laurier, at Ottawa, will cost in round figures one million dollars. It will be situated on Broadway, near the Manitoba Club, and close to the new Union Station. It has been definitely decided to call the hotel "The Selkirk," which not only has the merit of being a highly distinctive and appropriate name, but also one which is historically associated with Winnipeg and with the development of the West generally.

Messrs. Ross and Macfarlane, of Montreal, are the architects for the hotel. They are now working on the detailed plans, and construction is to commence forthwith.

This hotel will be the first of a chain of similar hotels to be erected throughout the West by the company. To-day the management announced the purchase of a centrally situated site opposite the Edmonton Club on McDougall Avenue, Edmonton, for the erection in the near future of another large hotel. The Company has also just closed a deal by which it secures a very advantageous site for a new station to be erected in the city of Calgary.

GOOD SEASON FOR CROPS.

Census Department Publish Re- ports From all Provinces.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A bulletin of the census and statistics office states that the season this year has been favorable for field crops in all parts of Canada, and excellent reports have been received from all the provinces. The lowest percentage of condition is made for Fall wheat, which suffered from inadequate protection in the Winter months, and also to some extent from Spring frosts. The areas of Fall wheat are greater than last year by 4.50 per cent. and of Spring wheat by 13.70 per cent.

The total area in wheat is 10,503,400 acres, as compared with 9,294,800 in 1910, and 7,750,400 in 1909. The per cent. condition of Fall wheat at the end of May was 80.63, and of Spring wheat 96.69. The area in oats is 10,279,800 acres and its condition 94.76, as compared with 9,864,100 acres and 93.95 per cent. condition last year. Other crops are satisfactory.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, the area in wheat, oats, and barley was 3,491,413 acres in 1900, 6,009,389 acres in 1905, 11,952,000 acres in 1909, and 13,809,300 acres in 1910, and it is 15,355,500 acres this year. The increase of these crops from 1900 to 1911 was 2,663,699 acres in Manitoba, 7,364,315 acres in Saskatchewan, and 1,836,073 acres in Alberta.

Japanese Deputation for Coronation Arrived Wednesday.

A despatch from London says: One of the chief events of Wednesday was the arrival of the Japanese deputation to the Coronation, including Prince and Princess Higashi Fushimi, the Prince representing the Emperor, and the Japanese war heroes, Admiral Togo and General Nogi. There was no official reception, because the deputation is not due officially until June 19. The Prince and Princess will spend the intervening time at Eastbourne, a watering place on the coast of Sussex, while Admiral Togo and General Nogi will remain in London. The two war veterans were cheered as they drove around Hyde Park in the afternoon.

Queen Mary on Wednesday received at Buckingham Palace the committee representing the Marys of the Empire, who presented to her Majesty their Coronation gift—a check for $800,000.

DIED IN POLICE CELLS.

Serious Charges Made Against Winnipeg Associated Charities.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: John E. Hetherington, an Englishman, collapsed in the police cells after three days' imprisonment awaiting trial on a charge of vagrancy, preferred by the Associated Charities, and died on Wednesday. Secretary Folke had the man arrested, claiming he would not work. Hetherington said he was sick. His wife, who has three children, pleaded for bail while her husband was awaiting trial, but was refused. She claimed he was ill and had worked when he was able and was kind to her. In a statement to the papers the wife says her husband had been murdered by the Associated Charities. No doctor was called to the station when the man collapsed. The Coroner is investigating, and the Sons of England have taken up the case.

MANY KILLED IN MEXICO.

Between 60 and 70 Dead and Injured by Earthquake.

A despatch from Mexico City says: Sixty-three were killed, seventy-five wounded and property worth $100,000 was wrecked on Wednesday by an earthquake shock, which shook the Mexican capital and injected a note of tragedy into what was to be a day of pure rejoicing over the arrival of Francisco I. Madero, jun. At Bufavista the railway tracks were twisted. The shock was followed by an explosion of gas at the artillery barracks, which added horror to the scene. The oscillations moved from north to south, and opened fissures in the streets. The adobe houses crumbled, but the dead in these cannot be numbered at present.

SHOT WIFE AND FRIEND.

Killed His Infant Child, Barricaded House and Suicided.

A despatch from Halle, Saxony, says: A painter named Heitel at daybreak, on Wednesday, entered a house where his wife, with whom he had quarreled, was sheltered by a woman friend, and shot both women and his infant child. He then barricaded the house and stood off the police for three hours. Finally the officers prepared to force the door, and let in a pack of savage dogs, whereupon the painter killed himself.

WILL EXPLORE JAMES BAY

Government Geological Staff Has Started on a Long Trip

A despatch from Toronto says: Mr. S. C. Ellis, one of the Department of the Interior geological staff, started on Wednesday from Cochrane, Ont., with four companions on a trip of exploration that will extend as far north as James Bay. They are acting in the interest of both the Federal Government and the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, and will be in the field constantly from now until October next, when they will return and deliver a report on the nature of the country, which will have considerable effect on the question of building a railway through the region. They have been instructed to examine the Moose River basin and the southern shore of James Bay, looking both to possibilities for navigation and resources of agriculture. All the chief rivers on the north side of the Height of Land empty into the Moose estuary, and the expedition will strive to ascertain the extent of the annual deposits of silt at this point, which are believed to leave a wilderness of shallows on the southern shore of the bay when the tide is out. If they can find a harbor where the water is deep enough for ships, and at the same accessible to the land for a railway, it will have considerable bearing on the negotiations to obtain a Hudson's Bay port for Ontario from Manitoba, as it may thus be rendered unnecessary to ask the other province to give up any of its territory.

some good cows among the offerings, and they brought 5 1-4c. Sales of selected lots of hogs were made at $6.75, and heavy weights at $5.75, and stags and sows at $5 to $2.25, and $5.50 per cwt., weighed off cars.

Toronto, June 13.—A hundred choice cattle fetched $6.15, and several bunches sold at $6.20, but the conspicuous feature of to-day's market was not the high figures reached so much as in the large number of cattle that sold over $6 per cwt. Cows were firm at $4 to $5.50, and bulls at $4.75 to $5.30. Milkers are steady. Sheep and lambs were no more in demand, but hogs are now quoted up to $7 per cwt, fed and watered, and $6.70 f.o.b.

Buffalo, June 13.—Cattle—Prime steers $6.30 to $6.50; butcher grades, $5 to $6.25. Calves—Cull to choice, $5 to $9.25. Sheep and lambs—Choice lambs, $7 to $7.25; cull to fair, $5 to $6.75; yearlings, $5.50 to $6; sheep, $2 to $5. Hogs—Yorkers, $6.40 to $6.45; stags, $4.50 to $5; pigs, $6.20 to $6.25; mixed, $6.40 to $6.45; heavy, $6.50 to $6.55; roughs, $5.25 to $5.40.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

Canoe Containing Five Filled in Squall on Lake Penag.

A despatch from Sudbury says: Archibald Tutt, aged 31; Jael Hunter, aged 26, and George Girard, aged 20, were drowned in Lake Penag on Monday. They were crossing the lake with Thomas Chambers and another man in a Peterboro' canoe, when a squall sprang up. The heavily laden canoe filled with water. The men clung to it, but the three mentioned became exhausted and sank. Chambers and the other managed to hang on to the submerged craft and drifted ashore, after being in the water about two hours.

Tutt, who came from England a few years ago, lived in Webbwood and leaves a young widow and a week-old child. Hunter came from Burk's Falls, and Girard from Arden. All three were employed on the Cleveland-Sarnia Lumber Company's drive. The bodies were recovered.

AUTOMOBILE CAPSIZED.

Women Killed and Man Seriously Hurt at Annapolis.

A despatch from Annapolis, N. S., says: A fatal automobile accident occurred on Wednesday near Round Hill. While Mr. L. D. Shafner, of Bridgetown, was bringing a party to Annapolis, consisting of himself, Mrs. Shafner, Mrs. Abram Young and Percy Burns, all of Bridgetown, the automobile capsized, almost instantly killing Mrs. Young and seriously injuring Mr. Burns. Mr. Young was telephoned for, but before his arrival his wife was dead.

AYLMER WOMAN DROWNED.

Mrs. Robt. Stevens Falls Off Wharf Trying to Save Dog.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Mrs. Robert Stevens of Aylmer, on Thursday afternoon tried to save her dog, which fell from the Aylmer wharf, and she herself fell in and was drowned. Her daughter called for aid, but a man in a boat came up too late. The woman was forty years of age, and leaves a family of three and a husband.

DISORDERS IN VANCOUVER.

Strike More Serious, and Government Can Do Nothing.

A despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: The strike is becoming more serious here daily, and disorders are increasing. The Government can apparently do nothing to pacify either side. Other forces are threatening to join in a complete tie-up of the city.

Health Committee, the idea being the creation of a permanent national council of health under the Conservation Commission acting in an advisory capacity to Federal and Provincial Governments on questions affecting public health and hygiene.

A national laboratory was part of the plan and it is proposed that it shall manufacture toxins, anti-toxins, sera, etc., while conducting analyses. These products, it is believed, will be purer than the common run and cost less.

ALL WATERS CONTAMINATED.

No Pure Drinking Fluid in Canada, Says Expert at Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: That there is no pure drinking water in Canada is a statement made by Dr. T. A. Starkey at the Canadian Medical Association's meeting on Friday morning. Dr. Starkey, who is an authority on such matters, said he did not believe there was a lake or river in Canada that was not in some way contaminated and should not be used as drinking water without filtration. The cause of this state of affairs, he said, was due to the great increase in population of the Dominion during the last few years.

HER COURAGE PROVED FATAL.

Heroine of Two Wrecks on Pacific Coast Dies From Overstrain.

A despatch from Victoria, B. C., says: Mrs. Minnie Paterson, the heroine of two frightful wrecks on the North Pacific coast, is dead at her home at Alberni. Her constitution could not withstand the strain of her exertions.

On Dec. 8, 1906 Mrs. Paterson, who with her husband kept the light at Cape Beale, made a memorable journey over five miles of cliff and bogs to send the Government steamship Quadra from Bamfield to rescue Capt. Allison and nine others on the barque Colombia, ashore and helpless in the rays of the Cape Beale light. She also made heroic efforts to rescue those doomed in the sinking of the steamship Valencia off Vancouver Island the same year, in which 140 lives were lost. Since then her health had failed steadily. The Canadian Government gave Mrs. Paterson a silver service and she received several medals.

DIAMONDS FOUND

Mr. Johnston Leaving for Method of Extraction

A despatch from Ottawa says: A new discovery of diamonds in Quebec has been made, and Mr. R. A. A. Johnston, mineralogist of the Geological Survey, will leave for Germany in a few weeks in connection with the effort being made to discover a satisfactory commercial process of extracting these diamonds from the chromite in which they are found. Should such a process be discovered, and the laboratory staff of the survey

Prince Rupert, 100 feet of water frontage; give a number of sections for parks, etc.; give sixty acres for a cemetery site; agree to start work at once on a two and a half million dry dock and a station and machine car shops, round houses, etc., costing over one million dollars, and agree that this is to be the definite Pacific terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific. A hotel to cost a million dollars will be started as soon as a site is selected. The plans of all these works are prepared and are here, and there is great elation over the agreement.

LOOKED SERIOUS.

Pedestrian, Bicycle, Motor Cycle and Auto in Mix-up.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: A young man jumped off a street car on Dundas street, at Waterloo, on Friday night. As he touched the payment he was struck and knocked down by a bicycle. In an instant a motor cycle piled into the mix-up, and then an automobile threw the entire mass to the one side. The spectators thought somebody would be surely killed, but all escaped with a few scratches, the man who caused the trouble hurrying away without giving his name.

185 MILES IN TWO HOURS.

Speed to be Attained by Trains in England With New Device.

A despatch from London says: Experts in behalf of large British railroads have reported favorably upon the invention of a safety appliance which is a modification of the bogie principle. The invention practically makes impossible the derailment of trains while rounding curves, thus allowing increased speed. It is claimed that it will enable trains to make the 185 miles between London and Manchester in two hours.

BEER WAS TOO STRONG.

Fines of $357 Collected at Cobalt From Saloonkeepers.

A despatch from Cobalt says: Fines totalling $357 were collected in court on Friday afternoon as a result of the prosecution of saloonkeepers charged with keeping liquor for sale. Late in May Inspector Morrison came to Cobalt, and on an inspection of saloons took samples of beer on sale. In every case the percentage of alcohol was over the amount prescribed, some samples going 9 per cent. Most of those arraigned pleaded guilty, and altogether eleven were fined $25 and $4.75 costs each. Four asked for adjournment for a week, which was granted.

Fashion Hints

FOR SUMMER WEAR.

The wide, long shoulder scarf is even more popular for the summer than it was during the winter. It may be of a double thickness of chiffon in two shades, blending or contrasting, or in silk, satin or crepe de chine, lined or unlined. It may be finished simply with a hem, fringe or gathered into a tassel. Its value lies in imparting a finish to the gown without in the least ruffling the line of neck and shoulder.

One of the strongest prevailing influences in summer fashions is the gown of striped fabric; not merely a "common or garden" stripe, but embodying two or more widths, and possibly introducing a totally different material, in some cases a plain one. Stripes, then, joined in reverse direction or diagonally, give a result as unexpected and "chic" in many cases as undoubtedly it is smart.

The solid Peking stripes are exceedingly fashionable in silk or satin and make delightful trimmings both for light and dark gowns. In glaze or taffeta these stripes are very popular for the perfectly plain under-dress which is worn with a tunic.

Very distingue is the prevailing fashion for hosiery harmonizing with the rest of the toilet, and a charming effect is produced by having hosiery just one shade lighter than the skirt.

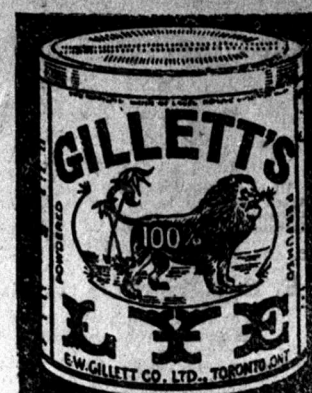

Shadow-striped hosiery is shown in lisle thread of various colorings.

The bolero coat is one of the favorite shapes for the coming summer.

Instead of the one-piece negligee held in at the waist with a silk cord or ribbon, many women delight in the semi-fitting coats or tunics to wear with a lovely skirt of muslin or silk. These coats and skirts are made of the thinnest stuffs, many of the coats having a sheer silk lining in white or colors, while through others flesh tints show. As a rule the coats reach to the knees and often have deep slashes at the sides, held together with ribbons or cord. The sleeves are wide kimono, coming not quite to the elbow.

The new chemises for women are cut like a man's shirt, slit at each side of the shirt so that it may be more narrow than that of former years. It also obviates the "riding up" of the garment under one's dress.

This is a season of stripes, necessarily black and white, but this combination is certainly the predominating one. Neckwear of lace and embroidery is touched up with black and white striped satin in any number of ways. Stocks, cuffs and jabots of Irish crochet have their edges trimmed with narrow bias folds of the striped material and occasionally the lace takes second place, serving merely as a border to articles made chiefly of the satin. There are all sorts of natty little bows made of the stripes cut on the bias mingled with the motifs of Irish crochet, some of them being finished with pendant striped balls technically known as cherries. Sailor collars are made of lace or embroidered lawn and edged with while a lace net or some form of jabot falls across the other. One delightful evening frock, in black satin, was made with one sleeve in satin and the other in white applique lace, veiled in black tulle, while a panel of rich silver and pearl embroidery on black chiffon encircled the waist and fell in a deep point on the skirt. A tunic of black chiffon fell over the long pointed train of black satin.

SALMON AND HORSERADISH

Molded Salmon with Cucumber or Horseradish Sauce.—One can salmon, one-half tablespoonful salt, one and one-half tablespoonfuls sugar, one-half tablespoonful flour, one teaspoonful mustard, few grains cayenne, yolks two eggs, one and one-half tablespoonfuls melted butter, three-quarters cup milk, one-quarter cup vinegar, three-quarters tablespoonful granulated gelatine, two tablespoonfuls cold water. Remove salmon from can, rinse thoroughly with hot water, and separate in flakes. Mix dry ingredients, add egg yolks, butter, milk, and vinegar. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add gelatin soaked in cold water. Strain and add to salmon. Fill individual mold, chill, and serve with either sauce.

Cucumber Sauce.—Beat one-half can heavy cream until stiff, add one-fourth teaspoon salt, a few grains pepper, and gradually two tablespoons vinegar; then add one cucumber, pared chopped and drained.

Horseradish Sauce.—Three tablespoons grated horseradish root, one tablespoon vinegar, one and altogether eleven were needed $25 and $4.75 costs each. Four asked for adjournment for a week, which was granted.

The C. P. R. Carried 34,000 Immigrants in May.

A despatch from Montreal says: An unprecedented influx of immigrants through Quebec and Montreal during the month of May is reported by the Canadian Pacific Railway, the actual paid transportation showing a total of just over 29,000 people, and as this does not include children carried free, who bear an average proportion to adult passengers of one in five, the actual total is probably nearer 34,000. These figures represent third class travellers only.

KING WILL NOT VISIT CANADA

His Majesty's Secretary Issued Official Denial.

A despatch from London says: Lord Knollys, the King's secretary, states that there is no truth whatever in the statement that the King proposes to visit Canada on his return from India.

CANADIAN TROOPS ARRIVE.

Lord Mayor of Liverpool and Civic Party Meet Contingent.

A despatch from London says: The Empress of Ireland arrived at Liverpool at noon on Friday with the Canadian Coronation troops aboard. They were welcomed by the Lord Mayor and a distinguished civic party. The local Territorials also paraded. The Canadians marched through some of the principal streets, arousing the keenest pleasure amongst the Liverpool crowds.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: W. J. Black, principal of the Manitoba Agricultural College, says the present crop outlook is one of the brightest in the history of the province. The crop is in exceptionally fine shape at present, and the percentage of poor grain is very small.

MURDER, THEN SUICIDE.

Contractor Fires Four Shots. Then Turns Pistol on Himself.

A despatch from Prince Rupert, B. C., says: H. Wood, a prominent contractor here, attempted to kill Alexander Matheson at the Seal Cove fish freezing plant on Saturday two miles from this city. Wood then fired a shot into his own temple, after having fired four bullets at Matheson, all of which missed him. In attempting to escape the bullets Matheson fell over, and it was thought he was killed. Wood then tried to commit suicide. The trouble is believed to have been over family matters. Wood will recover. He is under arrest charged with attempted murder and suicide.

Sailor collars are made of lace or embroidered lawn and edged with a bias fold of the black and white about an inch wide, or they are made of the latter and bordered with lace or embroidery.

One of the most noticeable features of the new fashions is the curious one-sided effect aimed at and carried out by the arrangement of the draperies or the general cut. In many cases one side of the bodice is draped with the material,

MEXICO WELCOMES HERO

Madero Receives Ovation Such as Was Never Accorded Diaz

A despatch from Mexico City says: Francisco Madero, the nation's hero, was welcomed to the city on Wednesday with glad cries of "Vive Madero," amid the ringing of church bells and the crash of band music. His train reached the railway station at precisely 12.15 p.m., and it is estimated that more than 150,000 people had collected in the street at the Colonia Station, around the national palace, and in the vicinity of Madero's house. There was an almost solid mass of humanity throughout the entire distance of two miles from the station to the palace. Such enthusiasm was never before seen in Mexico City and such a demonstration was never accorded Diaz even in the days of his popularity.

The crowd that awaited Madero was distinctly different from crowds which Mexico City is accustomed to see. There were no dress clothes, no silk hats in evidence, as the crowd along the line from the station to the palace was topped with the straw sombrero of the common people. Everything demonstrated the fact that it was the people's reception to the national hero.

Brockville Recorder.

As we understand it, what Hon. Mr. Fielding objects to is not the interference of British politicians in Canadian affairs so much as ill-formed, prejudiced and mischievous interference. And certainly such interference cannot be productive of good results. It never has been.

Mount Forest Confederate.

The best way to encourage patriotism is by teaching the duties of citizenship. A proper knowledge of and respect for the flag may be very useful in the teaching process, but the vulgarizing of an emblem, instead of promoting respect for it, is more likely to tend in the opposite direction.

Ottawa Free Press.

A New Brunswick man says The Ottawa Citizen isn't a Tory paper, and The Toronto Telegram in a column of type with big headings says Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a Tory. Even with all these statements we haven't any doubt the classification of George Foster, Sir James Whitney and The Toronto Mail and Empire.

Hamilton Times.

The story of a big bakery merger is attracting much attention in Montreal and Toronto. We may not be so far away from an agitation for municipal bakeries which will sell "bread at cost" as some people imagine. Cheap bread is of vastly more importance to the people than municipal power and light at cost.

Gloucester Gazette.

And now the people who have taken all these risks, and count less others less notable but scarcely less strenuous are told they will have to part with all they hold dear if they let themselves sell wheat and fish and potatoes to people from whom they already buy cotton and coal and steel. Canadians will size up the danger—and take the risk.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Where the Anti-reciprocity League makes its mistake, however, was in presuming too much on the gullibility of the people. There is a limit to this, even in political matters, and now that the trick has been fully exposed it will be largely deprived of its power for mischief. Nevertheless, Liberals in other parts of the country should be on the lookout for similar tricks.

Fort William Times-Journal.

The public expects motorists as well as non-motorists to conduct themselves as gentlemen. We know that the majority of them do so. But there is a small but very active minority that seemingly does its best to find out in what way it can most effectively flout the wishes of others. It is with these "joy riders" that the Ontario Motor League can well commence its campaign for "rational legislation."

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward. It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek. Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the fog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in patches, and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible. —New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age. Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market. In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting. If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven; otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests. Tea likewise deteriorates with age. It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing. The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it. —New York World.

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children. Pure sugar is good for grown people. Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser. What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants. The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets. —Christian Herald.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister. In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section along side his homestead. Price $300 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry including the time required to earn homestead patent and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $300 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

In making this statement we back it up with our promise that if our remedy does not substantiate our claim in every particular, we will without question or quibble return every cent you paid us for it. We take all the risk—you take none.

We strongly recommend Rexall Eczema Ointment, which possesses remarkable cleansing, antiseptic, germicidal soothing and healing qualities. It is a grafish-white emolient, with a pleasant odor, and very cleanly for use. The first application produces a refreshing sense of relief, and it quickly subsides and overcomes the inflammation, irritation and discharge when present.

It is intended to be applied with a piece of muslin or linen, or it may be applied and allowed to dry in. It affords very prompt relief for pimples, blotches, discolorations, ringworm, acne, tetter, barber's itch, ulcers, insect bites, nettle rash, hives, sores and wounds.

Rexall Eczema Ointment relieves itching and irritation of the feet. It is ideal for the treatment of children who are tormented with itching, burning and disfiguring skin diseases. Try a box at our risk. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Remember, it is only sold at our store—The Rexall Store—T. B. Wallace campaign for "rational legislation."

Regina Leader.

The campaign against Laurier is on in earnest. In Ontario and throughout the west he is being denounced as the author of this iniquitous reciprocity pact which aims at the disruption of the British Empire, while in Quebec Messrs. Monk and Bourassa are again on the warpath denouncing him too Imperialistic and as seeking to place Canada too closely under the domination of the British Government.

Brookville Recorder.

It was brought out in evidence before the Government commission last year that Canadian packers were making from 51 to 120 per cent profit per annum. Bacon has invariably been dearer in the Canadian market to the consumer than it has on the American side by nearly the amount of the duty plus cost of haulage. Householders in Belleville are paying twenty to twenty-five cents a pound right now with live hogs selling here at less than six cents.

Newmarket Era.

So far as regards the assertion that Sir Wilfrid is being "discredited," we have not seen anything in press reports of the old land to justify that assertion. On the contrary, he is not only admired, but generally regarded as the most picturesque figure of the Imperial Conference. The facts do not strike one as being indicative of being "discredited" in the old land, but rather seems to inspire the impression that Canada's Prime Minister is a man of whom the Dominion has reason to feel proud.

Winnipeg Tribune

The electors will soon have the opportunity of marking their ballots for or against reciprocity. Sir Wilfrid, his Cabinet and following display a refreshing sincerity in their support of the agreement. It seems almost superfluous to say that at least 90 per cent of our farmers are in favor of the agreement. And the wage-earners in centres of population and all advocates of freedom in trade are naturally on the side of the Government on the question of reciprocity. Mr. Borden could not have chosen any question upon which to seriously differ with the Government where his chances of success seem so slim.

St. John N. B., Telegraph and Sun.

The Conservatives urge the farmers generally to forego the advantages of a larger market in the fear that when they are enjoying the increased comfort and prosperity that would result they would insist upon an enlarged market in other directions. They ask them to sacrifice a present good for fear of a future which they consider evil. Sacrifice is a very useful thing in many departments of activity. It is a physical and animal trait that has come to us in the course of development; but when lifted into the plane and given the position in the life of the farmers to which Mr. Foster would assign it, it would sap energy by wresting away the fruits of action and make the world a poorer place than it might be.

SHIELDED THE LADY.

A Tactful Head Waiter Balked an Offensive Hotel Guest.

To illustrate an incident that occurred in a hotel uptown the other night, where, if you are not known, you have to produce some sort of patent of absolute respectability, construct a rectangle, lettering the imaginary diagonal corners A, B, C and D:

A represents a solitary male person dining. B represents a comely person of the opposite sex seated at another table with a party. C represents a head waiter and D a group of the unemployed waiters. Let the line AB represent an admiring look that travels continuously. BA represents a look of annoyance. CA and CB are comprehending glances directed by the head waiter.

The point C moves toward D, making a triangle. After a whispered direction a figure which may be termed O, because it represents a particularly rotund waiter, moves from the point D until it reaches a point on the line AB. C moves back to position.

A finds that his ogle stops at O, which he cannot see through, and calls O to take an order. Thereupon C motions toward D, when another waiter, traveling on the line DA, effects a junction with A and goes off at a tangent. A cranes his neck, stretching to one side or the other, but it cannot get past O. The result is that A finally sees what is up, finishes his coffee in sheepish disgust and leaves the room.—New York Sun.

Wrong Diagnosis.

A certain high rolling student at Heidelberg was ponderous, bibulous and somewhat stupid, his thirst for knowledge not being quite up to the standard of his thirst for beer.

This student the morning after a corps meeting, a meeting whereat he had drunk by actual count fifty-three large mugs of beer, awoke to find himself in bed, but half undressed, with his feet resting on the pillow.

From the low footboard the student regarded for a moment his large feet propped side by side on the white pillow. Then he muttered:

"Himmel! Here I've been thinking all night that I had the toothache, and it's my shoes that have been pinching me."

Men Wanted.

Two Irishmen died. One went to heaven, and the other went to the other place. Mike called down from heaven and asked Pat how he was getting along. "I'm shoveling coal," said Pat. "Do you have to work very hard?" "Not very," he said; "we have shifts. I work only about three hours a day." Pat then inquired of Mike how he was making it. "I'm sweeping down the golden stairs." "Do you have to work very hard?" "Yes," said Mike. "I have to work eighteen hours a day. We're short of men up here."

One Idea of Heaven.

A man who has been in political life for a long time informs us that his idea of heaven is a place where a man who gets into office himself is not expected to find a public job for everybody who voted for him.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Selby, June 5th, 1911.

The Council met at Selby.
The members present were Messrs. R. W. Paul, Reeve, and Councillors Fred Sexsmith, Alf. McCutcheon, W. R. Lott, and Jas. Windover, the Reeve presiding.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.
Moved by W. R. Lott, seconded by A. McCutcheon, that the minutes for the April session, 1911, as amended by the addition of a resolution authorizing payment of municipal officers as per Pay List No. 1, be adopted, also that the minutes of the May session, 1911, as read by the Clerk be adopted. Carried.

Moved by James Windover, seconded by W. R. Lott, that we pay Ford Russell the sum of $3.20 for gravel furnished to road section No. 19 in 1910, by order of the pathmaster. Carried.

Moved by Jas. Windover, seconded by A. McCutcheon, that R. J. Bush, assessor, be paid $800 for assessing the township and other extra work for the year 1911. Carried.

Moved by W. R. Lott, seconded by Jas. Windover, that the claims of John A. Richmond for damages to horse be laid on the table for further consideration. Carried.

Moved by Fred Sexsmith, seconded by A. McCutcheon, that the following accounts be paid: Edward Doyle, $6 refund of statute labour for year 1910, he having performed same by order of pathmaster; David Cameron, $1, one half for work on boundary between Camden and Richmond, for keeping road open during winter; Jas. Windover $6.50 for repairing two culverts on road between seventh and eighth concessions; Mrs. S. Mowers $5 for aid for month of June. Carried.

Moved by A. McCutcheon, seconded by W. R. Lott, that Jas. Black be appointed pathmaster for road division No. 12 in place of Jas. Vankoughnett, also that John Hartin be appointed pathmaster for road division No. 51, in place of Christie Hartin and that the by-law be amended accordingly. Carried.

Moved by W. R. Lott, seconded by Jas. Windover, that the Clerk be instructed to place a clause on the road list notifying the pathmasters that By-law No. 537, passed by the council of 1907 authorizes them to collect commuted statute labour at the rate of $1.00 per day. Carried.

Moved by Fred Sexsmith, seconded by A. McCutcheon, that Ira Bradshaw be appointed pathmaster for road division No. 38 in place of Frank Richmond, and the by-law be amended accordingly. Carried.

Moved by Jas. Windover, seconded by W. R. Lott, that a grant of $50 be laid out on the boundary between Richmond and Thompson.

QUAINT MARRIAGE NOTICE.

William Cullen Bryant Broke the News Gently to His Mother.

The following letter from William Cullen Bryant to his mother, quoted by Professor Chubb in "Stories of Authors," indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" could enjoy his little joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother—I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me. Early on the evening of the eleventh day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another. At last came in a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered. We went in and took our seats. The little elderly gentleman with the hook nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished most of us sat down. The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember, but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady of the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world."

Have You A Bad Sore?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c a box. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Relieves sunburn and prevents freckles. Best for baby's bath. 25c. tablet.

The Beginning and End.

Light That Failed.

Men have failed to make good in business because they worked under a poor boss when they started for themselves.

Two Kinds of Curiosity.

Philanthropic Visitor (to Jailbird)—My friend, may I ask what it was that brought you here? Jailbird—The very same thing that brought you here—the desire to poke my nose into other people's business, only I used generally to go in by way of the basement window.—Exchange.

Mean.

Miss Mugley—I always try to retire before midnight. I don't like to miss my beauty sleep. Miss Pepprey—You really should try harder. You certainly don't get enough of it.

Two Sides.

Willis—Why don't you go to church? Gillis—Too far. Why don't you go? Willis—We live next door to one, and I hate to get all dressed up just to go that little way.—Puck.

At the work one knows the work-

A Famous Paris Sign.

Paris is a city of curious signboards, one of the most remarkable ones representing a tobacco-stick's sign at 55 Rue du Chateau-d'Eau, which has been here ever since 1870. It is riddled with holes made by the bullets of the Prussians, and the occupant of the shop states that so far as he is aware it is the only public relic of the Franco-Prussian war in evidence in the streets of Paris today.

"My sign," he added, "brings me plenty of customers. You have no idea, monsieur, of the number of English and American tourists who pass this way and drop into my place for a cigar or a box of matches merely in order to have a word with me about my bullet riddled enseigne. I wouldn't part with it for anything."—Wide World Magazine.

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto.—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicines. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas.

After receiving your directions, I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way.

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—MRS. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Another Woman Cured

Maple Creek, Sask.—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now in perfect health. I was troubled with pains every month. I know other women who suffer as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—MRS. F. E. COOK, Maple Creek, Sask.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ills, don't hesitate to try Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

COST OF CORONATION.

It Will Cause at Least $100,000,000 to Change Hands.

"When Kynges are crowned, much gold dothe flye," wrote a chronicler of the Middle Ages; and there is little doubt, if he could "revisit the glimpses of the moon" this coming summer and see the grand total of the bill for the Coronation of His Gracious Majesty King George V., he would gasp with amazement, and would declare that he never wrote truer words in his life. Already the stream of gold is beginning to flow; and before it could be exactly ascertained, will indeed be staggering.

The expenses of the coronation ceremonies and the festivities immediately associated with it will alone come to a goodly sum. The current Estimates contain a provision for an expenditure of $900,000, in addition to a substantial available balance in the hands of Lord Beauchamp, who is the national host; and King George himself will, it is estimated, spend at least $500,000 out of his own purse. Thus we arrived at a startling item of close on $1,500,000.

For every pound spent on regal ceremonies and banquets scores will be lavished by the nation and by guests from over the seas on this carnival of rejoicing. From every corner of the wide world visitors are about to flock to our shores, with purses well filled, eager to "have a good time," and reckless of the expense. From the United States alone, it is said, at least 100,000 are coming, many of them millionaires, to whom a few thousands for a holiday jaunt are no more than the cost of a trip to Margate to the average man.

One palatial liner will come over crowded to its last cubic foot of accommodation with these transatlantic Croesuses. Every berth in every boat that will cross the "herring-pond" from now to the latter part of June has long been taken. In fares alone our United States guests will spend at least $10,000,000, a small instalment of the gold they bring with them to leave in British pockets.

Assuming that, on an average, each of these 100,000 Americans spends only $250 (an absurdly modest sum) on his holiday, we have an item of $25,000,000 to add to our bill. Canada is sending 8,000 of her people to the Motherland, Australia 10,000, and so on through the long list of those who will voyage to us over the seas. At a low estimate London during coronation week will play the hostess to 200,000 guests hailing from every remote part of the earth; and they will return home richer by the experience of a lifetime, and poorer by at least $40,000,000.

For the privilege of sight-seeing alone it is easy to calculate that a sum running far into seven figures will be paid. Fabulous amounts have already been paid for houses and flats in Mayfair, St. James', and Belgrave, in South Kensington and the purlieus of Hyde Park. For the day of the coronation procession itself 1,000 guineas is the cost of a flat in Pall Mall; and on the following day—the day of the royal progress—500 guineas will be disbursed for the same flat; 1,500 guineas for two days—at the rate of over $1,435,000 a year; The lowest price asked by one agent for a solitary window overlooking the processional route is $35; and single seats range from $25 to $125.

The millionaire who wants a house to himself, say, in Queen's Gate, must be prepared to pay something like $15,000 for it. In fact, one rich man has already secured a mansion in Upper Grosvenor street for $20,000, and is quite pleased with his bargain; while another Croesus has paid $17,500 for a house in Grosvenor square.

And what will the total cost be? He would be a bold man who would hazard a guess without stipulating for a margin of a few millions. That it can fall short of $1,000,000,000 the present writer declines to believe.

Escaped Through a Technicality.

"Did young Mr. Richun refer to the subject of love and marriage?" asked her confidential friend.

"No," said the Vassar girl. "If he had referred to it I should not have let him get away. He only alluded to it."

A Different Brand.

"I'm troubled with insomnia."

"So am I. I've had it for a year. The doctor calls it neurus insomnia paralaxitis."

"Gee! I've only had mine six months, and its mother calls it Arthus."

Basement Was Vacant.

"Did you say you were a month in your last place?"

"Yes, madam—a week with the family on the top floor, a week with a lady on the third floor, a week on the second and a week on the ground floor."

A Similitude.

"How the people do come and go in this office."

"Yes; they remind me of guns."

"In what way?"

"Because they are employed only to be fired."

NATURE WILL CURE YOU

Of Kidney Disease, Aided by Father
Morriscy's No. 7.

Kidney trouble is one of the most distressing ailments of mankind, and leads to backache and rheumatism. This is because of the importance of the work done by the kidneys,—work which must proceed normally to insure good health.

A very large proportion of civilized people have some form of kidney trouble, sometimes without knowing that their malady is of that nature. Many obscure pains can often be traced to diseased kidneys.

These organs are the filters of the body. Their function is to strain out of the blood and eliminate through the bladder the worn out tissue and other impurities gathered by the blood in its course.

When the kidneys become congested and sluggish, these impurities, including the irritating and poisonous uric acid, are not entirely removed from the blood. The result is that the uric acid is deposited in the joints and tissues, causing the agonies of rheumatism and frequently affecting the liver and other organs.

Father Morriscy, the famous priest-physician of Bartibogue, N.B., after much research compounded a remedy which worked hand in hand with Nature. His doctrine, justified by thousands of cures, was that the need is not a patchwork relief, but a treatment that will enable the forces of Nature, working through the kidneys, to accomplish their intended work.

His famous prescription, No. 7, assists the kidneys to work vigorously and eliminate the harmful uric acid from the whole system. In the form of tablets, No. 7 is easy to take, and will effect cures where other remedies have failed. Do not trifle with kidney disease, but take No. 7 Tablets, the treatment that has proved so successful with other sufferers.

THE CLOSING DAYS.

A Toronto Daily last week contained a despatch from a neighbouring city that, aged 101 years, had gone to the County Industrial Home, there to end his days, and he is said to have gone at his own request. But how the report startles us, that a man after fighting the battle of life for over one hundred years has to end his days in a poorhouse. The despatch further stated that the old gentleman had a son of seventy-five and two grandsons of over fifty living in the County. Naturally the reader would think it strange that so sad a course could have been necessary. But if the inner history were known, it would probably be revealed that the son and grandsons are in almost as bad a plight as the old man, and that he preferred to go to the poorhouse rather than to add to the burdens. The case is a pathetic one, but it is not unique—you hear of such every day—and the whole story emphasizes how terrible is an odage of penury, and how important it is that we should regard youth "as the springtime which soon departeth, and wherein we ought to plant and sow all provision for a long and happy life." If the old gentleman had been in receipt of a Canadian Government Annuity of only $200 his presence in the home of the son or grandson would have been a boon rather than a burden, and the cozy-corner would, no doubt, have been kept for him. He may have been a sober and industrious youth, but he had no system of investment which was absolutely safe, and which would yield him a bountiful return for the amounts which he might from time to time save; and so his money was spent or lost as fast

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)
Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her. — Mr. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.
My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets. — Mrs. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.
We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Hennequin Tablets have the letter "H" stamped upon them—this is your guarantee.

em of investment which was absolutely safe, and which would yield him a bountiful return for the amounts which he might from time to time save; and so his money was spent or lost as fast as it was earned. But there is no such excuse for the boys or girls, men or women, of Canada to-day, for by the Canadian Government Annuities Act they are provided with a system by which their savings will be taken care of and invested by the Government, and under which they will receive a return larger than it would be possible to secure from any other safe investment, because when the Annuity begins each payment absorbs a portion of the purchase money as well as of the interest thereon, and if the Annuity lives the average number of years he may be expected to live he will get back all that he had paid in with accumulated interest at 4 per cent. If he lives beyond this period, the Annuity will not cease but will be continued to him every three months so long as he may live. The plan is available at any Money Order Office in Canada.

The Postmaster will give you a booklet which will explain the system, and if you wish for information as to the cost, all you need do is to write to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, postage free, giving him your age last birthday, and he will advise you by first mail what this will be. Remember that it is the only absolutely safe plan by which your old age may be made free from anxiety, and happy and comfortable, and that it is the only sure plan by which a wage-earner or person on small salary can provide for the rainy day.

ROD AND GUN.

The most interesting portion of the fine story of the trip to Hudson's Bay via the Albany River by W. J. Malone appears in the June issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor Limited, Woodstock, Ontario. The trip was quite an adventurous one and is written in a spirit of thorough appreciation of the beauties and allurements of the wild and of the advantages enjoyed by one able to go so far from the beaten track. The interest is deepened by Mr. Malone's treatment of the theme and the fine illustrations accompanying the narrative. As maskinonge fishing opens in the middle of the month, two papers dealing with maskinonge fishing in the Kawartha Lakes and in the St. Lawrence are most appropriate. The vacationist will turn to Summer Holidays and Where to Spend Them, while many lovers of firearms will read Comparing 12, 16 and 20 Bore Guns by F. H. Coppyer and note the illustrations with the interest born of enthusiasm. A paper on Game Law Violators who commit offences in one Province and escape punishment by going to another, raises a question that will have to be settled sooner or later and which, in the interests of the game, should be settled without undue delay.

ENTRIES FOR THE PRIZE FARM CONTEST.

As the date approaches for the closing of the entries in the Interprovincial Prize Dairy Farm's Competition that will be held this year throughout Ontario and part of the province of Quebec, interest grows. It begins to look as if Quebec might succeed in capturing the interprovincial honors inas much as some exceptionally fine farms in that province are being entered in the contest.

This year Ontario has been divided into four districts. Ten prizes are being offered for the best farms in each of these districts. The farms will be judged in July. Entries close June 15.

A fifth district includes a portion of the province of Quebec. Next year there will be a special contest between the prize winning farms this year in each of the four districts in Ontario and extra prizes to decide the best farms in Ontario and Quebec. As some of the Quebec farms have been through several competitions held by the Quebec government, they are in good condition for the contest which leads many to believe that some of them are likely to carry off the interprovincial honors.

In the provincial contest held last year, the First Prize was won by Mr. R. A. Penhale of St. Thomas, Elgin County, the second Prize going to Mr. J. W. Richardson of Caledonia, Haldimand County, the Third to Mr. E. Terrill of Wooler, in Northumberland County, and the Fourth and fifth to Messrs. O. D. Bales and D. Duncan of York County. As it will be a great honor for this country for some of our local farmers to win some of these prizes it is hoped that a number of our best farmers will enter the contest.

Full information and entry forms may be obtained from the Secretary of the Prize Farm's Committee, H. B. Cowan, Peterborough, Ontario.

Special Notice!

We have inaugurated a special delivery to hotels for the benefit of farmers, during the time of the progress of the sewer on front street. All orders will be delivered immediately. If you have any repair work we will send and get it from your rig and return it as soon as done.

The First Cradle.

The earliest mention in literature of cradles is in the Biblical account of Moses' little ark of bulrushes. But there are in the British Museum some clay tablets found a few years ago on the site of ancient Ninevah which, according to archaeologists, make it quite clear that somewhere about 4,000 years before the Christian era there was another infant here exposed in a little ark of bulrushes. Thus the cradle that was found by Pharaoh's daughter 1400 B.C. was comparatively modern. It is certain that cradles were first used as a means of protecting babies from the attacks of wild animals by suspending them from the boughs of trees.

MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

Wonderful Nervous System

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early indiscretions and excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loss, etc.

This is the condition our New Method Treatment is GUARANTEED TO CURE. We have treated Diseases of Men for almost a lifetime and do not have to experiment. Consult us FREE OF CHARGE.

JUST ONE CURE FOR ANAEMIA

It is Through the Rich, Red Blood
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills
Actually Make

There is just one cure for anaemia—more rich, red blood. Anaemia is simply a bloodless, run down condition. Then the body becomes weak from overwork, worry or illness, an examination of the blood will show it to be weak and watery. The common symptoms are paleness of lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and a loss of appetite. Anaemia itself is a dangerous trouble and may pass into consumption. It can only be cured by making the blood rich and red, thereby enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every part of the body.

It is a proved fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands and thousands of cases of anaemia. They are really intended to make new, rich blood, and are compounded in the most scientific manner with the finest ingredients for the blood known to medical science. These Pills are not a cure-all. They are intended to cure only those diseases that have their origin in poor, watery blood, and starved, weakened nerves, and the record of their success in doing this is their constantly increasing popularity in every part of the world.

Mrs. R. Colton, Golden, B. C., says:—"As a matter of duty I wish to say a word in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for my daughters, one 16 and the other 18 years of age. Both were pale and bloodless and suffered from many of the symptoms of anaemia. They would tire easily, suffered from frequent headaches, were easily discouraged, and often fretful. I saw in our home paper the story of a young girl who had similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought three boxes of the Pills and my daughters started to take them. Before they were done they began to feel better and look better, and I got a half dozen more boxes, and by the time these were used, they were enjoying the best of health, with rosy cheeks and not like the same girls at all. I also gave the Pills to my little boy who had rheumatism, and they completely cured him."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SIX MONTHS TO COOL.

The largest steam hammer in the world has been made at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. It is used for forging steel plates of enormous thickness and size, is ten feet square and strikes a blow of 20 tons. The anvil block upon which its fearful impact descends is a solid cube of twelve feet, and weighs 180 tons. It was cast upon the foundation it now rests on, and it took the molten contents of six cupolas to make the block. When it was cast the Pittsburg fire department sent six fire-

FORTUNE FAVORS THE BRAVE; OR, A LOOK INTO THE PAST

CHAPTER XVI.

The newly-married couple were to go to London first, and then proceed to Paris and other Continental cities for their bridal trip.

The sacred service, the pealing organ, the wedding breakfast, with its laughter, buzz of voices, gorgeous dresses and flashing jewels, the hurried removal of her bridal array for her travelling gown, all had passed to Nancy as a curious dream. She moved about like one who is absolutely conscious of nothing, who is led by some strong influence, but beyond that is powerless to act for herself.

She heard the false, honeyed congratulations in a dim, far-off way, feeling it must be some other person who stood there with a bouquet of flowers in her hands and a carriage waiting to convey her away.

But she woke with a sudden pang of agony to know that it was no dream, but all hideous reality, as Dorothy flung her arms about her and kissed her farewell, weeping unrestrainedly as she did so.

Not till this moment did Nancy comprehend the fullness of the agony entailed by the sacrifice she had taken on her young shoulders; not till now did the fullness of her horror, her fear, her loathing of Thomas Crawshaw come to her. As her distraught eyes, shining like sapphires in their deep-blue glory, rested on his common face, full of savage triumph and unmeasurable conceit, she gave one great shudder, and, drawing her hand from Dorothy's, she ran down to the carriage and entered it. If she stayed another moment, she felt she should cling to Sir Humphrey, or to Dr. Grantley, who was there as her oldest friend, and implore them to protect her, and save her from a life of torture with this man for her husband.

Crawshaw was quick to see that shudder and that look of horror. His face grew very dark, and wore a nasty expression as he took his seat beside her and the carriage rolled away.

He said nothing to her, however, and, horrible as his sullen presence was to her, Nancy could not but be grateful for this silence.

Alas! she soon learned that this calm was but the prelude to a storm of impotent rage, before which she shrank aghast, and beneath which she cowed, not from fear, but from disgust and despair.

The country lanes were bordered with the villagers, who had come out to catch a last glimpse of the bride; but neither the man nor the girl made any effort to return their cheers and kindly greetings by even a bow or a smile.

Surely, never so curious a bride and bridegroom was ever seen before.

Nancy, still grasping the bouquet of delicate, hothouse flowers in her hand, crouched back in her corner, Crawshaw," poor Baines replied, her heart beating fast as she read her sentence in those eyes.

"Oh, you are—are you," and pray who told you you were to be maid to Mrs. Crawshaw?"

Nancy was exchanging a few hurried, nervous words with the old stationmaster. She never passed any one by without a kindly expression, and after that long, horrible silence it was a pleasure to exchange greetings with a sympathetic person. Her husband's loud, coarse tones grated painfully on her ear; she turned quickly, and her eyes rested on William's pale, smooth face, set in outward civility, but wearing an expression which made her blood boil. She walked across to Baines.

"What is the matter—what is wrong?" she asked, in scarcely audible tones.

Baines half turned to her; the woman's lips were trembling and her eyes were full of tears; but before she could utter a word Crawshaw had gone on furiously addressing her, and not bestowing a single scrap of attention to Nancy's question, or even to her presence.

"So now you know, and you can go back to the Hall as fast as you like, and tell Miss Leicester I don't intend to let no spies of hers come sniffing after my wife. Be off with you; Mrs. Crawshaw don't want no maid, and if she do, well, I will get her one; but it won't be an old fossil from that lot over there. I've done with them all from to-day—turned my back on them—and I won't have nothing more to do with them, so you can understand me clearly."

In his anger, Mr. Crawshaw spoke with a less regard for grammar than usual.

With difficulty Baines restrained her tears; she felt she must not break down, or Nancy would be more distressed than ever. She looked at the girl imploringly.

"What am I to do, miss?" she asked, hurriedly.

This direct indifference to him lashed Crawshaw to fury.

"Do!" he shouted, "do what I tell you—be off. Come, I shan't stand any impudence or nonsense, off you go!"

Nancy put her hand up to her throat; the white flowers in her bouquet were not so pale as her face.

"What if I—I refuse to let Baines go?" she said, in low, choked tones, her pride and anger making her faint and weak.

Crawshaw turned and looked at her fixedly.

"I don't think you will go against me, Nancy," he said, in ominously quiet tones, and with a shiver she understood him. Thwart him or defy him in any way, and his cruel hand would fall on the man for whose sake she had wrecked her life. No—no, she had put her hand cast curious glances at her. Even their dense minds grasped the fact that this was no common marriage, and that the white-faced bride deserved their pity, and not their good wishes.

But Nancy heeded none of them. She flung herself on the cushioned seat, and buried her face in her hands, not even stirring when Crawshaw entered. The door was slammed, and the train steamed slowly away.

She was not crying; she was simply overwhelmed, crushed to earth, now that the necessity for bearing up the strain of the last few weeks had gone.

Crawshaw appeared to take no notice of her. He opened a newspaper and commenced to read, whistling softly under his breath the while; but his eyes went every now and then to that bowed figure, and he bit his lip with savage anger as he realized that, though he had won—though he had compelled her by cruel means to bow beneath his power—he was, if anything, more detestable and contemptible in her eyes than before.

He had flattered himself that he would only have to show himself to Nancy in his new feathers, and she would be at his feet immediately. It seemed an utter impossibility than any woman could resist him and his wealth, more especially one who had lived in such poverty and hardship as Nancy had done.

He had a long arrear of petty spite and grudge to settle with this girl, and his whole mind had been occupied, directly she disappeared, in saving money to track her out and bring her to her bearings.

Fate, or the devil, was good to him, for he came into his unexpected fortune at the very moment when he learned, through his old companion, William, of her presence and position at Ripstone Hall.

From that moment Crawshaw had possessed but one motive in life—a desire to be even with Nancy, and despite her every struggle, make her his wife. He had not forgotten that January night when Derrick Darnley's strong right arm had stretched him low in the mud. He had brooded on it until it had become infused in his blood, as it were; and this, strengthened by Nancy's never altering disgust and dislike for him, spurred him on to the task of being revenged.

And now his task was completed. He had humbled her to the dust.

He had forced her to be his wife. His revenge was won, and yet he was not content.

He loved this girl—if such a sacred word as love can be applied to the jealous, selfish passion which surged in his mean breast. It was not enough that she was his wife—his slave; she must be his lover. Her beauty belonged to him now. Her wonderful, red-brown hair; her sweet, picturesque face; her eyes—those maddening eyes, of heaven's deepest, truest blue—all this was his by right of the marital vow she had just spoken. But Crawshaw's heart beat with a fierce, jealous throb, as he realized that, despite a hundred vows, no love would shine for him out of those eyes; her lips, instead of meeting his would shrink and grow pale if he touched them with his own; that, though she was his wife, his own property, her heart, her very soul, was given irrevocably to that other man; and that contempt, loathing, hatred, deep and immeasurable, lived in her breast for him.

anvil block upon which the fearful impact descends is a solid cube of twelve feet, and weighs 180 tons. It was cast upon the foundation it now rests on, and it took the molten contents of six cupolas to make the block. When it was cast the Pittsburgh fire department sent six fire-engines to the scene, and kept them there for a week, or until all danger that the fearful mass of molten iron might burst its bonds, or by its exploding gases fire the neighborhood, had ended. It took nearly six months for the anvil to cool, so that the sand mould might be dug away, and even then workmen could not touch it with their hands.

AN INVALUABLE MEDICINE

Mrs. W. Arnold, Edmonton, Alta., writes:—"Kindly send me a box of Baby's Own Tablets. They have been invaluable to me and I really do not know how I ever would have got along without them. Baby was poorly; his digestion was bad and he was constipated. I gave him the Tablets and they made a fine healthy boy of him. Now, whenever he is cross or troubled with constipation, I always give him the Tablets and they relieve him right away. I tried a lot of other medicine, but nothing seemed to agree with him till I got the Tablets. I would not be without them." The testimony of Mrs. Arnold is that of thousands of other mothers. Everyone who ever uses Baby's Own Tablets have words of praise for them. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NON COMMITTAL.

"Oh, Jack," said the blushing girl, "have you seen father?"
"Yes, I have come straight here from his office," replied the young man.

"And did he give his consent?"
"I couldn't quite make that out. He seemed disinclined to commit himself definitely."

"Why, what did he say?"
"He didn't say anything at all."

"Did you ask him?"
"I said: 'Sir, I wish to marry your daughter. Have I your consent?' He turned and looked at me a minute. Then he began to grow red in the face, and then he grabbed me and threw me over the banisters, and before I could ask him again he had slammed his door and locked it—but he didn't say anything either way."

A Ready Weapon Against Pain.—There is nothing equal to Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil when well rubbed in. It penetrates the tissues and pain disappears before it. There is no known preparation that will reach the spot quicker than this magic Oil. In consequence it ranks first among liniments now offered to the public and is accorded first place among all its competitors.

cheers and kindly greetings by even a bow or a smile.

Surely, never so curious a bride and bridegroom was ever seen before.

Nancy, still grasping the bouquet of delicate, hothouse flowers in her hand, crouched back in her corner, and kept her white face steadfastly turned from him; and he sat with his arms folded, his brows knit, and his eyes, still wearing that evil, cruel expression, fixed on her as a hawk might watch its prey.

The drive to the station was long, but Nancy wished it could have been even miles farther. For one hour did they sit in the carriage and roll through the sunlit country, just beginning to show a trace here and there of coming autumn, and never exchanged one word; and as each landmark and well-known spot vanished behind her, her courage and strength faded, too, till, as they came to a standstill at last, she was trembling in every limb.

Crawshaw shambled out of the carriage, and then, regardless of the etiquette or any remark, turned his back on the girl, and left her to alight at her own convenience, thereby provoking many glances of astonishment from the station-master and the porters, and making Baines flush angrily, and long to knock him down.

The maid had previously been dispatched with Nancy's luggage, and she had been informed by Mr. Crawshaw's groom that she would meet the bridegroom's valet and her new fellow servant at the station.

To her intense surprise, and no little disgust, this individual turned out to be none other than William, the discharged footman from the Hall, a man whom she had never liked, and for whom she had a supreme contempt.

"Like master, like man," she said to herself, as she superintended the arrangement of the luggage without bestowing any but the curtest of greetings on her companion in service.

"Well, I thank Heaven I am going to be with Miss Nancy, for I feel sure something awful would happen to her alone with these two horrid men."

There was a self-satisfied expression about William's face that annoyed her, and his flippant manner to the steady old station-master, who was, in Baines' opinion, far above the valet in every way, roused her ire beyond description.

"We shan't be together long," she said to herself, grimly, as she stood waiting for her young mistress to come, "before I give him a piece of my mind, or my name ain't Esther Baines."

And at that moment she descried the carriage turning the corner of the lane, and prepared to receive Nancy.

An angry flush spread over her honest face, followed by an angry beat of her heart, as she saw Mr. Crawshaw treat his young wife with such scant courtesy; but her anger soon changed into fear and disappointment as she saw that her new master was coming direct to her, and that his face boded no pleasant or good news for her.

"What are you doing here?" demanded Crawshaw, roughly, scanning her up and down with his deep black eyes, his hands plunged as usual into his trousers' pockets.

"I am going as maid to Mrs.

"I don't think you will go against me, Nancy," he said, in ominously quiet tones, and with a shiver she understood him. Thwart him or defy him in any way, and his cruel hand would fall on the man for whose sake she had wrecked her life. No—no, she had put her hand to the plough, she must not look back; the sacrifice was not nearly complete, but, having taken it up, it would be worse than madness to permit her uncle's shame to become known now, when by simple submission to the tyrant's will she could avert such a calamity.

"Mr. Crawshaw's wishes are mine," she said, speaking in cold, even tones, the effort of sheer desperation. "therefore you must leave me, Baines; I—I am sorry, but—"

Baines made no answer; she could not control herself sufficiently to speak, for she did not know what she might not say if she began.

Crawshaw's eyes were full of triumph.

"Come, sharp's the word," he remarked, as he turned on his heel and lurched away a few yards.

"Baines," Nancy whispered, eagerly, "I want you to tell Miss Dorothy that she—is not to try and do anything for me until—I until I ask her help; and, Baines, say I entreat, I beg, that she will never disclose my unhappiness to a soul. I can trust you, I know, Baines, but I do not want all the world to know the truth of my marriage."

"Oh Miss Nancy! Oh Miss Nancy!" It was all poor Baines could say, and even if she had wished to speak more, she had no opportunity, for Crawshaw returned at that moment, and, without more ado, bundled her down the steps into the carriage.

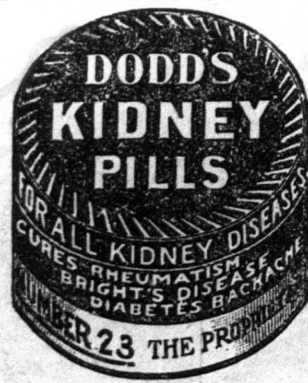

A mist blinded Nancy's blue eyes as she stood and watched the departure of this last link to her lost, all too brief happiness.

Her sorrow was so keen that she seemed almost stunned by it. She did not realize the full bitterness of her position as she would have done at another time.

She glanced down at the flowers in her hand. What a mockery their fragrance and loveliness was! They had no part in her life henceforth. She had done with flowers and sunshine, happy, dreamy hours in the summer air—all was gone from her, without hope of return.

With an irrepressible shudder, she dropped the costly bouquet on the platform, and went with hurried, nervous steps to the saloon carriage which Thomas Crawshaw's money had procured to bear himself and his newly-made wife to the metropolis.

The porters and a few rustics who had congregated to see them depart meeting him would shrink and grow pale if he touched them with his own; that, though she was his wife, his own property, her heart, her very soul, was given irrevocably to that other man; and that contempt, loathing, hatred, deep and immeasurable, lived in her breast for him and his cruel, cowardly conduct.

FARMER'S WIFE TELLS HER STORY

FOUND A CURE FOR ALL HER ILLS IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

She was tired, worn-out and nervous, and suffered from Rheumatism, but two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

Hawthorne, Ont., May 22 (Special).—Mrs. T. G. Alexander, wife of a well-known farmer living near here, adds her testimony to that of the thousands who have learned from their own experience that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Kidney Disease.

"I suffered for twelve years," Mrs. Alexander says. "My back ached, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I was nervous and tired and I was troubled with heart flutterings. Rheumatism developed and added to my suffering."

"I was in a very run-down, worn-out condition when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, but I am thankful to say they gave me relief almost from the first. Two boxes cured me completely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys mean that all impurities are strained out of the blood. That means pure blood all over the body and the banishment of that tired, heavy feeling and those pains and aches that impure blood brings.

AMBIDEXTROUS MINDS.

Scientific Discovery That is Reported From Germany.

From Berlin comes the assurance that to be ambidextrous is also to be better balanced mentally, for whereas right handed people have the organ of speech on one side of the brain, and vice versa, "people who are ambidextrous have two language centres, (one in each lobe of the brain)." This claim may or may not be based on a physiological fact. But before we endow it with any educational or scientific value we should like to know how far its proposed application to German national schools is promoted by genuine scientists, and how far that proposal is only a sign that the "Bilingualists" are again at work. If the latter supposition is correct, it is to be feared that cultivators of ambidexterity as an intellectual asset may have to look for their fruition to other countries than Germany, which has too often been a dumping ground for unclaimed scientific causes in the past.

A man may sidetrack a lot of temptation by getting himself locked up in jail.

AN UNEXPECTED ELEPHANT.

A Hunter's Experience in an Indian Jungle.

While looking for bison, it was the luck of Mr. E. P. Stebbing, author of "Jungle By-ways in India," to confront an elephant, which had approached within a hundred yards of the sportsman before he was seen.

As he still continued to approach and gave no sign of having winded us, we got off the path and stood behind four small, stunted sal-trees, which happened to grow close to it. Luckily, we were heavily armed; but the regulations laid down on the shooting permit against shooting elephants were strict and plain.

On came the huge animal. I doubt if I shall ever see a finer pair of tusks. So great was their length that it almost looked as if it was necessary for the animal to keep its head up to prevent their catching the ground and tripping him. Truly, he was a lordly beast as he advanced, and I found myself almost praying that a shot might be necessary.

That elephant came on absolutely unconsciously, until we computed that six strides would bring him into the middle of us.

He then came to a sudden halt. Forward came the ears in a great flop and up went the trunk, and he stood the very embodiment of vigilance, and, so it appeared to my acutely strung senses, of mischief as well. We all stood for what seemed to me an interminable space of time. Probably it was at most half a minute.

Our good luck was with us, however, for after standing like a statue for the half-minute, the great beast swung round like a teetotum and went crashing off through the grass and up an opposite hillside before one had realized that he was not going to charge.

I must say that we all heaved great sighs of relief when the tension was over.

There is little doubt that we should not have made the mistake of letting him get so close. Had he charged from where he was, the odds are that he must have got one of us.

CURED HIS RHEUMATISM.

Yarmouth, N.S., June 2, 1908.—"I have been bothered with Rheumatism for the past year and have taken a good many kinds of medicine and found no relief for it."

"One day a friend advised me to try Gin Pills, so I did, and after taking only one box of them, I felt like a new man. I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how thankful I feel for the relief they gave me, and would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to get Gin Pills."

EARLY TO BED RULE A MYTH.

London Specialist Says Brain Workers May Retire Any Time.

The old proverb, "Early to bed and early to rise," was very popular with our grandfathers, but, according to a leading London physician, a specialist in mental diseases, there is little truth in the statement that such action will make you either "healthy, wealthy or wise."

"Go to bed as late as two in the morning if you like and if you can get eight hours' sleep it will make no difference in your health," he says. "Some people whose lives of mental activity make the mistake of hurrying to bed at 10 or 11 o'clock because they are obsessed with the idea that one hour's sleep before midnight is worth two afterward. They go to bed, switch off the lights and flatter themselves that they are doing the right thing, but it often happens that they begin to worry and fidget simply because they have gone to bed too soon."

"It's all right for the working-man to get well to bed before midnight—his fatigue is purely physical; but with the mental worker there is little physical tiredness. If he comes home at half past 11 from a theatre or a long day's work he should take at least an hour to go to bed. He should read something light which will not disturb him mentally, then go quietly to rest."

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c. box. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Relieves sunburn and prevents freckles. Best for baby's bath. 25c. tablet.

THE OLDEST MAP.

After some controversy about the age of various maps that have come down to us from ancient times it has been finally determined by savants that the oldest is in the form of a mosaic in a Byzantine church at Malaba, in Palestine. It is about 1,700 years old and purports to be a map of a part of the Holy Land.

CURED OF CONSTIPATION

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

IMMATERIAL.

A stout, gorgeously-arranged woman sat talking to a friend. Her husband had just come into a considerable fortune, and, like many other persons who have been born in the country and lived their business life in the city, had begun farming in an amateur way. In their case, however, it mattered little whether crops were good or bad.

"Yes," the lady remarked, "since John's uncle died we have a nice country house, horses, cows, pigs, hens, and—"

"That must be charming," broke in the other. "You can have all the fresh eggs you want every day."

Belle—"This new hat I got doesn't suit my hair at all." Maud—"Well, dear, and which are you going to change?"

She—"I'll wager you have told lots of other girls that you loved them." He—"Well, if such has been my misguided career it is now in your hands to put a stop to it."

"But," protested the wayward son, "you should make allowance for the follies of youth." "I'm!" growled the old man. "It it wasn't for the allowance you get there'd be less folly!"

The sudden departure of Diaz from the land he has ruled so long should surprise no one. It is not the custom of dethroned monarchs or deposed presidents of Latin-American republics to haunt the scenes of their past grandeur. No matter how cheerfully they may seem to accept the changed order of things, the new rulers distrust them and wish they would go to the ends of the earth. Diaz, old and feeble, is no longer to be feared. If he wished to remain in Mexico, doubtless he would be allowed to do so. After Santa Anna had upset Mexico many times and had been exiled often, he was permitted to return when he was a broken down, spiritless old man and die in his own country.

One can understand why Diaz might not wish to stay. He must have made implacable personal enemies. Now that he is no longer to be surrounded by troops, he might not feel himself safe. His enemies would not be likely to pursue him across the Atlantic. They might follow him to his native city of Oaxaca if he were to retire there. Life in a provincial town would be dull and wearisome after a residence of thirty years in the national palace. He and his family would miss "the pomp, the pride, the royal show" to which they have become accustomed. In Madrid he will be a personage, while in Mexico he might be only a suspect. From his point of view and that of the men who have deposed him it is better that he should go at once.

In connection with the concrete house which is to take the place of the frame dwelling when finally building timber becomes too costly to be thought of, the manufacture of asbestos shingles, which is beginning to be felt in the building world, promises to provide the roof for the new type of structure.

In a recent governmental report Canada lays claim to being the greatest producer of asbestos in the world, supplying 82 per cent. of that product. In 1880 the production was only 350 tons, while in 1909 the production was 63,300 tons, valued at $2,300,000. Companies operating asbestos quarries and manufacturing are capitalized at $24,290,000 and in 1909 employed 3,000 men, receiving annual wages of $1,350,000. As to the extent of the deposits of this mineral substance, it is said that the Black Lake quarries in Quebec show 45,000,000 tons in sight. As to the value of this substance in roofing only the dominion report says:

"It will not be long before the asbestos of the shingle business, which is commencing to be felt, will be laid to rest, indeed, it is not too

THE FARM

Useful Hints for the Tiller of the Soil

TIME FOR COW TO FRESHEN.

Winter dairying has been advocated for many years on the ground that it is more profitable. In the first place, there is not as much work on the farm in the winter time to claim the attention of the owner as there is in the summer. During the summer months the fields must be tended, the crop gathered, repairs made on building, etc., while in the winter the dairyman has an opportunity to devote the greater portion of his time to his cows.

When proper methods are used in preparing a ration for a cow, it is very doubtful whether it costs any more to feed her in the summer than in the winter, especially when we take into consideration that a drought is apt to come during the month of July and August and force the dairyman to feed grain and hay. Moreover the price of land has been steadily advancing, making pasturage more and more expensive. With the use of the silo the growing of clover or alfalfa makes it possible for the dairyman not only to prepare a very good ration, but a very economical one. Further, cows that calve in the fall will produce more milk in a year, as a rule, than those that drop their calves in the spring. If a herd is properly fed during the winter season the milk yield will be sustained throughout the winter and when they are turned to grass in the spring the stimulating effect of the grass will usually increase their milk flow and there will be no heavy shrinkage in milk flow until the cows are ready to go dry.

Another reason for having the cows calve in the fall is that it gives the calf a better opportunity to develop. When calves are born in the spring they are apt to be troubled considerably by flies to whose ravages they are very susceptible. Fall born calves receive closer attention from the feeder than if born in the spring, as there are not so many things claiming his attention. For the first few months of the calf's existence, it can make but little or no attention, which is no drawback, as the fields are demanding all the time that a farmer can give.

In many respects we consider fly time the hardest and at least the most aggravating time to produce milk and the more cows that are dry at this season of the year, the better, so far as the milker is concerned. We recognize, of course, there are circumstances and conditions which make it more profitable for men to have their herds calve in the spring, and dairymen supplying cities with milk must have their herds calve at all seasons of the year, but as a general thing we believe it is more profitable and more satisfactory to have the herd calve in the fall.—Hoard's Dairyman.

the comfort of stock, but that idea is generally overworked. The natural advantages of grazing and hospitable weather are easily dissipated by carelessness. Short pasture, a stale water supply, insufficient shade and protection from flies, vie with the ravages of disease, parasites and preventable accidents in annoying the stock and robbing the stockman.

As the summer advances there is a strong temptation to allow animals to fare as best they may while the entire attention of the farm help is given over to the crops. This course cannot be safely followed. When attention lapses accidents seem most prone to come.

Even if complete arrangements are made for carrying stock past the harvest rush of work with the minimum of attention, responsibility cannot be laid aside. A few years ago a farmer busy cutting wheat did not see his flock of sheep from one Sunday until the next. In the meantime several lambs were killed by dogs, and a fat ewe, unable to get up after rolling over on her back, had perished after an evident struggle of a day or two. Ponds and streams sometimes go dry with amazing suddenness in harvest time, with consequent suffering to animals. Blackleg may get in deadly work among the calves of a herd when frequent inspection and timely vaccination would have nipped the epidemic at its inception.

In a hundred ways the revenue from summer pastures may be lost by the man who is too busy here and there to attend to all of his interests. The stockman can never shake off responsibility. His fidelity to it measures his success.—The Breeders' Gazette.

COMPOSITION OF CORDITE.

Made of Two Powerful Explosives Kneaded Into Paste.

Cordite is the outcome of the strange paradox that if you mix together two powerful explosives the result is a smokeless, slow-burning powder. Nitro-glycerin and gun cotton mixed together with a little petroleum jelly make cordite. It is curious to see the two deadly explosives being kneaded together into a paste by women with the same unconcern as dough is kneaded for bread. Indeed, machines similar to those used in bakeries take up the work and knead the buff-colored cordite paste for several hours. Then it is forced through molds and issues in long cords—hence the name cordite—the thickness of which is varied according to the weapon in which it is to be used.

For big guns cordite is half an inch thick and cut into lengths of thirty-seven inches. Rather more than a thousand of these cordite sticks packed in two bundles make up the cartridge for a twelve-inch

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, JUNE 18.

Lesson XII.—The downfall of Samaria, 2 Kings 17. 1-18. Golden Text, Prov. 29. 1.

Verse 1. The twelfth year of Ahaz—One of the worst of the kings of Judah. See lesson for last Sunday—Word Studies.

Hoshea son of Elah—There are no special manifestations of strength in the character of this king. To be sure he is singled out of all the kings of Israel, for commendation (rather negative) to the effect that, while he had done some evil, it was not as the kings of Israel that were before him. But he had none of the faith nor the positive qualities of the reformer. Doubtless he did not replace the calf at Dan which the Assyrians had taken away. But he lacked the energy to bring back the old worship. Indeed, he seems to have lived with one eye upon the Assyrian power and the other upon his own interest. He was an opportunist, as he was a puppet. It would have required a man of broad, disinterested statesmanship, courage, and unyielding trust in God, to steer the already battered ship through the stormy waters of this eventful era.

3. Hoshea . . . brought him tribute—This humiliation was the result of the differences which had existed between Ahaz, king of Judah, and Pekah, king of Israel. The former had called in Tiglath-Pileser to defend him against Pekah and the king of Syria. When Pekah had been disposed of, Hoshea, who was a conspirator, was given this vassal sovereignty in Samaria. From inscriptions we learn that the tribute was a heavy one, ten talents of gold ($200,000) and 1,000 talents of silver ($1,250,000).

4. The king of Assyria shut him up—This is all we know of the fate of Hoshea, except a possible hint in Micah 5. 1. Some conjecture that a battle was fought, and the king captured, before the walls of the capital. At any rate, the cause of this sudden vengeance is not hidden. Hoshea was playing a double and losing game. If his cessation of payment of the annual tribute had been followed immediately by the arrival of the Egyptian forces, he might have won. But his ruin was in the procrastination of King So. When it was too late Hoshea tried to propitiate Shalmaneser with gifts. But the Assyrian monarch was aware of his duplicity.

6. Ninth year of Hoshea—Samaria was taken B. C. 722. Sargon, probably a usurping officer of the army, had succeeded Shalmaneser the year before. Samaria was not destroyed. The inhabitants who were carried away in captivity were replaced by foreign colonists, under Assyrian governors.

Placed them in Halah—North of Thapsacus, on the Euphrates. Sargon reported the number as about 27,000. The record of these wholesale deportations of men, women, and children, flocks and wagons, is preserved on the tablets in Sargon's palace at Khorsabad. The Habor is the same as the modern this substance in roofing only the dominion report says:

"It will not be long before the asbestos or shingle business, which is commencing to be felt, will lay more and more heavily laid. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the time is not far off when fully 75 per cent. of the slate produced in the world will be used in the manufacture of asbestos slate and shingles. The asbestos slate business is only a few years old, but during that space of time the demand for this article has increased to such an extent that factories for this article are being established all over the world."

A SPONGE MARKET.

For "Strings" are Handed to the Auctioneer.

Sponges grow to perfection at the bottom of the blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico and are found in greater abundance within a radius of twenty-five miles of Tarpon Springs than elsewhere in the waters of the United States, and are of a superior quality. They are excelled only by those caught in the Mediterranean Sea.

Sponges are taken by divers who go down in waters twenty to fifty feet in depth. These divers often meet with exciting adventures and are constantly exposed to danger from sharks and other denizens of the deep. Their pay is based on the value of the sponges taken, and runs from $50 to $200 a week.

When sponges are first taken they are filled with animal life. They are washed as clean as possible, are assorted, and placed on "strings" four feet ten inches in length. They are then ready for sale. There are four grades, in the following order: Wool, yellow, wire and grass.

The sponge market is a lot about an acre in extent in the centre of which is a large building or shed. The sponges are placed in piles of 100 to 150 "strings" all round this building. The sale is conducted in a peculiar way. The buyers examine the sponges and when the auctioneer opens the market and calls for bids they write their offers on slips of papers and, and them in. The auctioneer examines the highest bid, which may be refused by the owner, but the same sponges are not offered for sale twice the same day. They may be put up once more, and if not sold then must be taken away and incorporated in a new lot. The sales take place Tuesdays and Fridays, and the amount realized averages about $12,000 a week.

JAPANESE HOUSES.

The modern Japanese house is built of wood with a tile roof and no cellar. Its doors are made of sliding shutters so that it is possible to make doos anywhere and leave the house open at any point. There are no bedrooms needed in a Japanese home because any of the rooms can be transformed into a bedroom by putting a thick comforter on a straw mat. Japanese houses are kept exceedingly clean and shoes are removed on entering the house, so the dust of street is not carried in.

When we hear some people talk we wonder how it is possible for them to do it.

ing cities with milk must have their herds calve at all seasons of the year, but as a general thing we believe it is more profitable and more satisfactory to have the herd calve in the fall.—Hoard's Dairyman.

STOCK IN SUMMER.

Nothing contributes more to the thrift of live stock than persistent attention to its needs. The spasmodic enthusiast whose devotion to his charges is in proportion to the immediate impulse is never a real stockman. Physical well being cannot be administered in bulk. The animal which is comfortable, without hunger or thirst from day to day, and not subjected to disease, maintains a healthy, steady advance in growth, flesh or milk production. Every period of hardship, however short, is accompanied and followed by stagnation of nutritive processes and the possible loss of progress already made.

The pasture season is hailed as a relief from daily ministration to ing to the weapon in which it is to be used.

For big guns cordite is half an inch thick and cut into lengths of thirty-seven inches. Rather more than a thousand of these cordite sticks packed in two bundles make up the cartridge for a twelve-inch gun. For the rifle cordite is pressed into a very thin string, like the finest macaroni, and sixty of these strands one inch and a half long make the neat little bundle which lies inside the cartridge case. For some European armies cordite is made in flat thin strips like whalebone. Kept away from fire, cordite can be handled with impunity.—London Graphic.

Harry—"What did Kate say when you proposed to her?" Frank—"She said 'Yes.'" Harry—"Then she is really going to marry you?" Frank—"Oh, dear, no! What put that in your head? The question I asked was: 'Do you prefer to remain single rather than accept me?'"

THE INFLUENCE OF WOMAN

They Have Assumed the Spiritual Leadership of the Age

The universal opinion of mankind places the love to God as the chief motive force in morals.

Right next to this in importance and in power comes the supreme love of one man and one woman.

It may have its roots in the desires of the body, as a lily has its roots in the mold, but its flower and spiritual consummation is farthest removed from earthliness and has the finest ethical flavor.

It is amazing how many saints and councils and ecclesiastic polemics have regarded the love of woman in any way akin to evil. While religionists fulminated against the danger of soft smiles and laughing eyes to the soul, down in Provence the troubadours were founding a better theology, which crept over the Alps and touched one Dante, who perhaps more than any other genius has rescued woman from the slough of sense and made her man's spiritual guide. The substance of his gospel was that it is woman whose soul awakens the soul of man to his kinship with God.

THE ANCIENT JEWS

had their "court of women" in their temples, and the Mohammedans deny them souls; so also the hermits and holy anchorites prayed to be delivered from them.

If our civilization of to-day is better, and at least it is kinder and more humane; if we have penetrated into the core of all religion and found it to consist of no more nor less than emotional altruism (altruism with dynamic), the prime cause of our advantage is that women have assumed the spiritual leadership of the age.

In our churches it is "the court of men" that fringes the rear of the pulpit; with us, contrary to Islam, sometimes doubt if men have the right to say if a man has been led with institution, he cannot tell whether or not he dare claim he loves God, let him love his wife. If that is not loving deity, it is the next thing to it.

I speak soberly. I refer to ethical power. Sincere, loyal love between one man and one woman is to my mind a hundred times purer than that purity supposed to bloom in the unmated. A good wife is a better cure for unworthy thoughts than fasting and flagellation.

And equally good is a supreme exclusive affection in the woman soul. To utterly love one man, to choose him and cling to him

"FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE" is not to be called conducive to religion; it might almost be called religion itself.

This human love, romantic affection, which looks to marriage as its normal fulfillment, ousts sin in the best way sin can be ousted, by what Chalmers called "the explosive force of a new emotion." It stops moral lesion by the most potent of moral antiseptics, love itself. It heals the diseases of the soul, not by the crude methods of bleeding and blistering, incantations and amulets, but by the rational scientific principle of "assisting nature to throw off the poison."

It goes to the seat of life and empowers there. It stimulates the white corpuscles of the spirit to devour and destroy all deadly microbes and dangerous bacilli.

It is significant that all through the middle ages men worshiped a woman with a baby in her arms. It is still significant that the most vigorous religious movement in this opening of the twentieth century is headed by a woman.

The dying Bunsen said to his wife, as she stooped to kiss him: "In thy face have I seen the eternal!"

DR. FRANK CRANE.

Thapsacus, on the Euphrates. Sargon reported the number as about 27,000. The record of these wholesale deportations of men, women, and children, flocks and wagons, is preserved on the tablets in Sargon's palace at Khorsabad. The Habor is the same as the modern Khabour, a river in northern Assyria, flowing into the Euphrates.

8. Kings of Israel—Jeroboam, who introduced the calf-worship, and Ahab, who was responsible for Baal-worship in Israel, are especially in the thought of the writer as he digresses to summarize the lessons of his story.

9. Tower . . . fortified city—That is, they set up their secret bowers and wicked images not only in populous but also in sparsely settled places, such as sheepfolds and vineyards.

13. By every prophet—Israel had failed in her high mission in spite of the warnings and exhortations of such men as Ahijah, Elijah, Elisha, Micaiah, Jonah, Amos, Hosea, Nahum, Oded, and Jehu. The mention of such names shows how much more God had given to Israel than to Judah.

16. Asherah—Singular of Asherim. Lewd images, presumably of the Phoenician goddess Ashtoreth. The worship of the starry host of heaven was borrowed from the Assyrians. It is never mentioned in the Mosaic law until after the Israelites had come in contact with these eastern peoples.

17. Caused their sons . . . to pass through the fire—These were rites connected with the worship of Moloch, learned from Ammon and Moab. They were prohibited in both Leviticus (18, 21) and Deuteronomy (12, 31; 18, 10). Ahaz is said to have made his son pass through the fire (2 Kings 16, 3). The purpose of this hideous sacrifice was apparently to propitiate the Deity by the yielding up of the most precious possession.

Divination and enchantments—These were practiced by means of belomancy (Ezek. 21, 21-22), and necromancy. The curse of all this, and the selling of themselves for immoral purposes, connected with the heathen idolatries, was, that it led the people farther and farther away from God, till they forgot both their dependence upon him and their responsibility to him.

WISE GEORGE.

"Maud," he said softly, waking her from a day-dream, "when we are married, dearest, I wouldn't like my little wife to be worried and bothered at all."

"No, pet," she said, "I'm sure you wouldn't. But why that remark, George?"

"I've been thinking, sweet, what an awful trouble it would be gathering up crumbs from the Turkey carpet we've decided on for the dining-room."

"Oh, George, how thoughtful of you!" she murmured. "You've such a head for trifles."

"I have it," said he; "we'll toss—tails for Turkey carpet, head for linoleum."

It fell linoleum, and as George tucked his double-headed penny safely in his waistcoat pocket he whispered:

"Such a head for trifles, did you say, pet?"

MISS MERIDALE'S FATHER

With the exception of Miss Gangell, everyone in the offices of Messrs. Wenham and Stewart, solicitors, was attracted by the new typist, Miss Meridale. She was a very pretty girl, and dressed very tastefully, though quietly.

Miss Gangell, a young lady who had many friends on the boards, remarked that Miss Meridale ought to "walk on," and advised her strongly to go on the stage. For hitherto, by sheer force of argument, Miss Gangell had queneed it over the lady typists, and she recognized in the new typist looks and breeding that she herself could not aspire to.

Now there was a young man in these offices who was not of a susceptible type. He liked the opposite sex, and was rather popular with them, because of his kind, courtly nature and absence of side. This was Leslie North, and he was secretary to the managing clerk, and was regarded as likely to fill that position when the present clerk retired. This, however, would not be for a number of years, but, all the same, Leslie North's position was a good one.

He was distinctly attracted by Miss Meridale, and as it fell to his lot to dictate letters to her, a friendship slowly grew up between them.

Miss Meridale held herself aloof, as a rule, though by no means in an unpleasant manner, but between her and Leslie the barrier slowly fell away. He had a number of tickets for concerts sent to him from time to time, and very often he gave a couple to Miss Meridale.

Occasionally he met her at these concerts, which she attended with a girl friend, and these meetings helped to deepen their friendship materially.

One day he offered her two tickets which she refused, as her friend could not come. Then Leslie plucked up the courage to ask her if she would go with him, as he had no one to go with, and to his great delight she accepted.

There was never an evening like it, from Leslie's point of view. It seemed a tremendous time coming, and when it came it flew by at lightning speed. It was an evening of indescribable bliss to him, an evening he never forgot.

A few weeks later it was repeated, and Miss Meridale's liking and respect for North increased with intimacy.

It was a few days after this that Miss Gangell was very annoyed with the managing clerk because he had found it necessary to criticize her work.

"I could tell him a few home truths," she said with a knowing wink. "I hear a lot of funny things behind the scenes. I have a mind to write him an anonymous letter and tell him a few things."

"You would be running a great risk," exclaimed Miss Meridale. "If you were found out you could be summoned for libel."

"Not for telling the truth."

"Oh, yes, the law regards the truth as libel when used in a vindictive manner."

stiff. The man had better carry out his intention and go, he thought, or else he would go out a lot quicker than he meant to.

"God-bye, Ella!" came the man's voice.

There was no response, and Leslie took a step out into the passage. But just then the man left the typists' room and walked into the general office towards the main entrance.

The episode afforded food for conversation during the whole afternoon. When Ella went into the general office, the clerks grinned.

She entered Leslie's room later in the afternoon to bring in the letters for signature. She was very pale, and her eyes were shining. She flashed a look at Leslie that was almost a look of inquiry, but he gazed at her with his usual ready smile. Then he took out his watch.

"It's getting on for five o'clock," he said. "I'm so glad, I'm looking forward to to-night."

"I do not want to go, Mr. North," she said. "I cannot tell you why now, but I will after office hours."

Then she put down her letters and left the room, leaving Leslie plunged into the depths of despair. He had been half afraid she would say this after what had happened, but he had hoped she would not. Still, there was just a chance, she was going to meet him afterwards, perhaps he could persuade her yet.

Feeling very miserable and depressed, Leslie walked to the corner of King Street in Cheapside, where he always met Ella. They did not meet near the office for fear of exciting comment.

"Let us go into St. Paul's," she said when he came up.

They boarded a bus, and did not exchange half-a-dozen words until they were in the silent precincts of the cathedral. Then they sat down, and Ella turned to Leslie.

"I suppose you know what took place this afternoon?" she said.

"Yes."

"Someone has played a cruel imitation of a joke on me, Mr. North. The man who called this afternoon I have never seen in my life before."

"I know that."

"You know it?" she repeated wonderingly. "How do you know it?"

"Because I heard you say so this afternoon."

She smiled at him, and impulsively stretched out her hand and rested it on his.

"But the others do not believe me," she replied. "I could see them laughing at me all the afternoon. I shall not return to the office."

He caught her gloved hand in his. "Don't say that, Ella!" he said softly. "You mean all the world to me. I love you, Ella. Don't go out of my life, dear."

She looked up at him with shining eyes.

"You know nothing about me," she said slowly. "But you had enough to go on this afternoon. No one else believes in me, why should you?"

"Because I love you, Ella," was the swift answer. "Will you be my wife, dear? Your father may be who he may be, it is his daughter I want. Say you will marry me, dear."

"Yes, Leslie, I will marry you," she whispered.

"Oh, my dear!" he murmured, his voice trembling, and he clasped

FRUIT RECIPES.

Strawberry Cream.—Over a quart of strawberries pour one teacupful of sugar, let stand for an hour, then rub through a sieve or fruit press. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-quarter pint of cold water for an hour, then add a cup of boiling water and a little sugar. Stir until the ingredients are thoroughly dissolved. Set aside and when cooled add the strained strawberries. Pour into pretty molds or large bowl and set on ice to chill till ready to use. Any other fruit may be substituted for strawberries with equally good results. Oranges prepared this way are just splendid.

Cherry Tapioca.—Soak four tablespoons of tapioca in a pint of water over night. Next morning stone the cherries to make one pint of fruit. Add juice of the cherries with pint of water to the tapioca; let simmer for about twenty minutes; add sugar to make it sweet; add cherries and cook four minutes longer. Set on ice. Serve with whipped cream.

Pineapple Dessert.—Boil one-half cupful tapioca in one and one-half cupfuls water until clear; when cool add a small can of pineapple, sliced, or a small pineapple grated and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar; add about two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice to give added flavor. Serve ice cold with whipped cream and garnished with powdered nuts. This will be as good as the finest sherbet.

Strawberry Fluff.—At this season when strawberries are tempting and too expensive for the ordinary purse a good substitute will be a satisfaction. Take a small glass of strawberry jam and whip it with a bottle of cream. Place two ladyfingers on a plate and add a couple of tablespoonfuls of the strawberry and cream mixture. Garnish on top with one of the largest berries in the glass.

Strawberry Custard.—Make a custard of one and one-half cupfuls of milk, three-fourths cupful of sugar, one or two eggs, two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Heat milk in double boiler, then add cornstarch, dissolved in a little cold milk; let come to a boil, then add eggs and sugar beaten together very light. Remove from stove and add vanilla. Have ready as many sherbet cups as you wish to serve. Take five strawberries for each cup, cut in halves lengthwise. In the bottom of each cup place a half nut meat; arrange five pieces of your berries around it to look like petals of a flower. Now pour in the warm custard, leaving room enough to repeat the flower design on top. This may be made early in the day, as it is best served cold. A dainty and easily prepared dessert, and especially economical when strawberries are not too plentiful.

Strawberry Ice Cream.—Two quarts of pure cream, fourteen ounces of white sugar; mix well. Mash one pint of fresh ripe strawberries, sprinkle them with half a pound of fine sugar; let it stand till center is firm. Unmold, serve with drawn butter.

Fried Green Peppers.—Cut open lengthwise, four green peppers. Remove seeds, slice peppers crosswise, and lay in boiling water. Let them stand until the water is cold. Drain and wipe peppers and fry in butter. Serve with fish.

OLD FASHIONED RECIPES.

Grandmother's Doughnuts.—One quart of flour, one cupful of milk, one egg, one cupful of sugar, salt, one large mixing spoonful (heaping) of thick, sour cream, one small one-quarter teaspoonful of soda, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Roll, keeping as soft as can be handled, and fry in hot fat. Roll in powdered sugar.

Cream Pie.—Crust—Two cupfuls flour, one cupful lard, sufficient water to mix; salt. Bake a pie crust shell in a layer cake pan, then bake one on the bottom of same size pan to serve as a cover or lid. Prick both crusts to keep from puffing up in bubbles. Filling—One and one-half cupfuls of milk, one egg, one-half cupful of sugar, a bit of butter, salt. Cook on top of stove as soft custard and thicken with one-half cupful of flour mixed carefully in a little cold water. Flavor with vanilla and just before serving fill crust shell and place the crust cover on top.

Southern Cake.—One and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful butter (scant), three-quarter cupful of milk, whites of three or four eggs, two heaping spoonfuls of baking powder, about two cupfuls of flour, sifted four times, vanilla. Filling—One cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of white sugar, one cupful of milk, butter size of a walnut. Boil all together (add butter when nearly done) until it forms a soft ball in water. Take from the fire and add one teaspoonful of vanilla, one teaspoonful of lemon, chopped raisins, cherries (candied), citron, and peach nuts. Beat until creamy, and spread between the layers and on top.

MAKING CAKE.

First attention should be given to the oven, making sure that the fire is not too hot, and will remain even until the baking is done. Unless you have control of your fire do not attempt to bake cake.

Sponge Cake Mixtures.—Beat the yolks until they are a light yellow and creamy and slowly beat in the sugar. Add flavoring and liquid and beat again. Beat the whites until stiff and fold in without beating. Add flour lastly with as little stirring as possible, as it makes the cake tough. Always follow these directions and cake failures will never be known.

Loaf cake requires less heat than thin cakes. If the oven is too hot at first or is suddenly cooled while the cake is baking the cake will be heavy. Loaf cake should bake as long again as thin cake. Divide the and tell him a few things. "You would be running a great risk," exclaimed Miss Meridale. "If you were found out you could be summoned for libel." "Not for telling the truth." "Oh, yes, the law regards the truth as libel when used in a vindictive manner." "Hark!" exclaimed Miss Gangell sneeringly. "Because Miss Meridale has been in a solicitor's firm five minutes she thinks she knows all about law." "It was my father who told me," said Miss Meridale quietly. "What does he know about it?" demanded Miss Gangell scornfully. "He is a J.P." Directly Ella Meridale uttered the words she flushed to the roots of her hair, and would have given anything to be able to call them back. Miss Gangell laughed loudly. "I don't think," she said. "It is likely that the daughter of a J.P. would be a typist at thirty shillings a week, isn't it?" "You are at liberty to disbelieve it if you wish to," said Ella, and then she began to type swiftly. Her quiet manner annoyed Miss Gangell. Several times the latter had referred to Ella contemptuously as "the duchess," because of the girl's refined manner. "J.P., indeed!" she said when Ella had gone out of the room. "She must think we're green. I'd just like to see her shown up." It was discovered that there was a Mr. Meridale who was a J.P. of the County of Somerset, and from one or two thoughtless remarks Ella had made, it was evident that she was not on good terms with her people. Just a week later came a day when Leslie and Ella were going to see a play together. Leslie felt as happy as possible that day, and went about his work in a light-hearted manner, wishing that the hours would pass quicker and bring the evening. When he came in from lunch just after two o'clock, he noticed that the clerks in the general office were all on the grin, but he did not stop to inquire the cause. As he passed the typists' office, however, the door happened to be open, and he saw a shabby, unpleasant-looking, elderly man seated within. Wondering somewhat at the man's presence, Leslie passed into his room, which was just across the passage. As he was taking off his hat and gloves he heard footsteps come along the passage, and then he heard Miss Gangell's voice say: "Oh, Miss Meridale, your father has called to see you!" Leslie started. Ella's father! Good heavens, it was not possible. And yet, why not? He did not know anything about Ella's people, she had never said anything to him about them. Then he heard the voice of the girl he loved say in indignant tones: "What does this mean? Who are you? I do not know you." "Oh, Ella," came the man's voice, "surely you are not going to deny your old father?" "Will you please go away," said Ella. "I do not know you. I have never seen you before." "Oh, what ingratitude! Just because I have come down in the world. All right, my dear, I'll go. Ah, I little expected anything like this to happen!" Leslie stood up very straight and the swift answer. "Will you be my wife, dear? Your father may be who he may be, it is his daughter I want. Say you will marry me, dear." "Yes, Leslie, I will marry you," she whispered. "Oh, my dear!" he murmured, his voice trembling, and he clasped her hand tightly. It was all he could do there. "Come," he said rising. "you are mine now, we will spend the evening together. Let us go to the park, not to the theatre." They went outside and hailed a bus which took them to the Marble Arch. Then they wandered through the park, and in a quiet corner they plighted their troth in the time-honored manner. Presently they were walking along by the Row again, and all of a sudden a man's voice fell on their ears— "Ella!" it cried. They turned to see a large car run up to the railings. In it sat a gentleman and a lady, and they were both gazing eagerly at Ella. "Mother! Father!" The words broke from her lips in a startled fashion. "There is an opening a little farther up," said Mr. Meridale. "You can get in the car there." "Leslie will come with me," said Ella firmly. The occupants of the car gazed anxiously at North, and then Mr. Meridale said: "We shall be pleased to make your friend's acquaintance." As in a dream, Leslie accompanied Ella to the opening in the railings, and a few moments later they were being driven away. "How could you leave us, Ella?" asked Mrs. Meridale. "But please introduce us to this gentleman." "This is Mr. Leslie North," said Ella. "We are engaged to be married. Leslie, this is my father and mother." Leslie bowed, and then Ella continued. "I ran away from home, Leslie. I was going to tell you about it this evening. Father and mother wished me to marry a gentleman I did not care for, and rather than do that I came to London and shared rooms with an old school friend. Through her I got the situation at Wenham and Stewart's, for I was an accomplished stenographer and typist, having acted as my father's secretary for a long time." She gave her parents an outline of her career in London, and of how her friendship with Leslie had grown. "Leslie and I love each other, mother, and we must go together," she said with a sad little smile. "I love both you and dad, but I cannot obey your wishes." "My dear, now we have found you we are not going to lose you again," said Mrs. Meridale. "We did not mean to coerce you into marrying Mr. Hammond. I obeyed the dictates of my own heart when I was a girl," she paused and smiled at Leslie, "and I know you will be the happier for doing the same." * * * So Messrs. Wenham and Stewart lost Ella's services, and the clerks learnt a few truths from the lips of Leslie North. Later on Miss Gangell took one of the girls to a supper-party attended by some of her friends in the theatrical world. Wine circulated freely, and when the wine is in the truth comes out, for out of easily prepared dessert, and especially economical when strawberries are not too plentiful. Strawberry Ice Cream.—Two quarts of pure cream, fourteen ounces of white sugar; mix well. Mash one pint of fresh ripe strawberries, sprinkle them with half a pound of fine sugar; let it stand about an hour, strain through a fine sieve or a cloth; if the sugar is not dissolved stir it well. Add a little water. Stir this juice into the cream and freeze. Do not get the idea that the ordinary housekeeper cannot make these delightful desserts, such as ice cream and water ices. They are easy and when home made are much superior to those purchased at the confectioner's. Use only the best materials—pure cream, ripe natural fruits or good extracts of the same, and sugar the purest. These make a perfect ice cream. To freeze the cream pound up ice two parts, mix with one part coarse salt. Have your ice and salt as high around the outside of freezing can as the cream reaches on the inside. Begin to stir the cream at once. Stir rapidly and constantly. This is essential to make smooth cream. If the cream is allowed to freeze to the sides of the can without being quickly removed there will surely be lumps of ice through it.

NOVEL DISHES.

Baked Onions.—Parboil Bermuda onions ten minutes. When cold remove center and fill with mixture of bread crumbs and the chopped centres, seasoning highly and adding a generous amount of butter. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs, cover and bake an hour in a pan containing a little water. Uncover and brown lightly. Duchesse Peas.—Mash six boiled potatoes, add salt and pepper, two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons cream, yolks of four eggs. Mold in oblong hollow cases, brush with egg, and bake a delicate brown. Fill with freshly cooked green peas and serve at once with lamb chops or veal cutlets. Mexican Onion Spaghetti.—Melt two tablespoons butter in saucepan of granite ware. When hot add four ounces spaghetti, broken small, a half onion chopped, one teacup canned tomato, half teaspoon salt, six shakes cayenne. Stir till slightly browned. Add a large cupful of hot water and simmer till water is absorbed and spaghetti is tender. Stuffed Cucumbers.—Peel four medium sized cucumbers cut in two lengthwise, remove seeds. Prepare filling of one cup minced chicken or veal, two tablespoons cream, one tablespoon crumbs, salt, pepper, and parsley, minced. Fill and bake covered a half hour, surrounded by one cup white stock. Uncover, sprinkle with buttered crumbs, and brown five minutes. Cauliflower Timbale.—Press through sieve one cup boiled cauliflower, add one-third cup crumbs, two whole eggs, and one yolk beaten till well mixed, half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, one-half cup cream or milk. Mix thoroughly, turn into buttered mold, and bake makes the cake tough. Always follow these directions and cake failures will never be known. Loaf cake requires less heat than thin cakes. If the oven is too hot at first or is suddenly cooled while the cake is baking the cake will be heavy. Loaf cake should bake as long again as thin cake. Divide the times of baking into quarters. The first quarter should show a rising, with the edges higher than the center; the second a continued even rising, with a slight brown tint; the third a deeper brown, and the last a shrinking and settling. If your cake rises and cracks in the center you are using too much flour; when it browns before rising the oven is too hot. How to Put Butter Cake Mixture Together.—Cream the butter with hand or a large spoon, add sugar and cream again until very light. When the proportion of butter is small it may be put in with the eggs and sugar. Beat the yolks until light yellow, add to butter and sugar and beat again. Add flavoring and then a little milk, then a little flour, a little milk again, and so on until the milk and flour are all used, and beat vigorously until your mixture is smooth. Add lastly the beaten whites. Fruit should be added last, and fruit cake mixtures should be a little stiffer with flour.

HOME HINTS.

Brown boots, when stained, may be cleaned with a raw, cut potato. A cheap red coloring for cookery is made thus: Chop a large beetroot very fine and pour a little boiling water over; strain and use. Looking-glasses should be kept perfectly bright by cleaning with a rag moistened with methylated spirit. This will remove fly marks and other stains. Your porcelain sink can be cleaned very easily by rubbing with newspaper moistened with paraffin. Afterwards scrub well with soap and water. Should there be any obstinate stains, scour with a little powdered rotten stone. The smell of cigar smoke can soon be dispelled from a room. Put a few red-hot coals on a shovel and then sprinkle some ground coffee over. The fumes will purify the room. Steel on a kitchen range should not be blackened. It can be easily polished with a mixture of whitening and oil. Turn pillow slips when they are beginning to wear, and they will take a new lease of life. Unpick the bottom seam, and before sewing it up again fold the case so that the seam at the side goes down the middle. In this way the whole pillow slip wears evenly. Dusters made of cheese cloth are excellent for dusting old china and bric-a-brac. Kitchen chairs should always have wooden, not cane, seats, then if anything greasy be spilled, they can be scrubbed. They should be kept in good condition by an occasional polish with beeswax and turpentine.

Bill—"What will he do when all the fools are dead?" Jill—"He'll never live to see that day." "What is your idea of a heroine, John?" asked the wife of his bosom, and she looked up from the novel she was reading. "A heroine, my dear," answered John, "is a woman who could talk back, but doesn't."

the actors related for the benefit of the company how excellently he had played the part of a dissolute old man in order to oblige Miss Gangell. Leslie is now managing clerk, and he is quite confident that in Ella he possesses the very best wife in the world.—Pearson's Weekly.

Andalusian girls are, as a rule, singularly graceful, with small hands and feet. LEAGUE BASE BALL GAME

The baseball game on Thursday evening of last week, notwithstanding the long score, was keenly contested from start to finish, and was very interesting from a spectator's standpoint. The interest in the series of junior games is not lagging any, but is increasing, as can be noted by the increased attendance at each game.

On Tuesday evening the Trinity Church defeated the St. Mary Magdalene boys, and if the next game goes to St. Mary Magdalene the teams will again be tied as to games won and lost.

Astrology With Risks.

Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "Then I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even earlier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be hanged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

VELOCITY OF LIGHT.

One of Jupiter's Moons Showed the Way to Computel It.

The speed at which light travels through space was discovered almost by accident 250 years ago. It grew out of an irregularity in the movement of one of Jupiter's moons. At one period of the year this moon was sixteen minutes and thirty-six seconds behind time—that is, behind the time table it had kept six months before. This moon would disappear behind Jupiter and at times be sixteen minutes and thirty-six seconds late in reappearing.

In other words, the time table Jupiter's moon kept in spring was different from the one it kept in fall. It is important to note that the variation occurred every six months regularly. Every half year the moon would be this quarter of an hour late in coming out from behind its parent planet, Jupiter. This periodicity explained the irregularity for the distance between us and Jupiter varies every six months, and the moon appeared late in making its appearance because its light had a greater intervening space to travel over in coming to us.

Suppose you are off a merry-go-round and a big arc light is at one side of it. At times as you ride around you will be near the arc light and at times removed to the opposite side of the circle. When you are on the opposite side the light will have to cross the circle to reach you. To cross the circle in which the earth moves is a distance of 186,000,000 miles. Hence astronomers saw it took the light of Jupiter's moon sixteen minutes and thirty-six seconds to travel 186,000,000 miles. The sixteen minutes and thirty-six seconds are about equal to 1,000 seconds. Therefore the rate at which light travels is 186,000,000 miles divided by 1,000, or 186,000 miles per second. That this is true modern machines clearly show.

Andalusian girls are, as a rule, unusually graceful, with small hands and feet. Their complexions are pale with the exception of those who live by the sea or in mountain places, such as Ronda, where the women have always been noted for their beauty.
Some say the Spanish skin is the most perfect in Europe, and Gautier describes it as "a golden pallor," but unfortunately the Andalusian girl is very anxious to hide its fine texture under a coating of powder. Weather seems to have little effect on it, for it neither freckles nor discolors.

Spider Thread Clothes.

In the thread of the spider lies dormant a great industry once it is properly studied. Numerous attempts have been made to utilize the threads for cloth to make clothes, etc. All have been so far doomed to failure—anyhow, as a financial proposition. It is related that Louis XIV. had a dress made from spider's web which was so fragile that he became disgusted with it. The entomologist D'Orbigny had made for himself a pair of trousers from the webs of tropical spiders, which lasted for a long time.

Killing One Fly.

Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a thousand others.—Youth's Companion.

Ancient Horses.

It is a well-known fact in human history that man used the horse as an article of food only for an enormous period of time, perhaps 100,000 years, before he discovered that he was far more serviceable as a means of transport. In fact, it is an open question whether the so-called paleolithic men of Europe used the horse as a means of transport at all. It is certain that when Europe was invaded by the neolithic men they brought the domesticated horse with them and introduced cattle as the principal form of animal food.
